Council to set guidelines

Ambitious Sunset parking plan runs into snags

By DAVID LELAND

A FORMAL proposal to build a five-story underground parking lot at the north end of Sunset Center has been returned to its maker. It appears that certain procedures have been ignored.

It is now time for some guidelines.

The Carmel City Council will attempt to provide that direction in a special meeting to be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday, May 18, in the council chambers at city hall, located at Ocean Avenue and Monte Verde Street.

Originally, the council had scheduled a May 12 meeting to hear a presentation by EMC Planning Group Inc., a Monterey-based architectural firm, which made a proposal last March to build a garage with a price tag between $4 million and $5 million.

But after several other architectural offers came to the city's attention, it became clear that a more traditional method of selecting a contractor would need to be followed.

It appears EMC was contacted through Planning Commissioner Ed Hicks, who is organizing the city's search for a viable parking solution at Sunset Center. Hicks is vacationing in Europe and was unavailable for comment.

During the next two months, Hicks called several invitation-only meetings where Michael Groves, EMC president, answered questions regarding EMC's parking lot proposal.

While the audience varied at each meeting, among those attending at least one gathering were Mayor Clint Eastwood, some councilmembers, several planning commissioners and a small group of residents.

Councilmember Jim Wright did not attend any of the meetings and was not notified.

"I wasn't offered an opportunity to participate," he said, referring to not getting an invitation. "It doesn't seem strange, it goes on all the time."

It remains unclear why EMC has been the only group actively courted in connection with the underground parking lot at Sunset Center.

And it became even more difficult to analyze the company's findings when, last week, the firm dropped off only enough proposals — stamped "confidential" — for the five councilmembers and the city administrator.

By making available a limited supply of proposals, it became impossible for the remaining city staff and residents to become involved in taking part in any discussion on the matter.

The proposal by EMC showed a multi-level underground garage, which would hold between 330 and 370 cars.

Also, in the interim, the city has also received parking lot interest from resident

Ted Leidig, ACUBUILD and an unnamed Texas-based firm.

In order to keep competition on the level and provide an equal chance for all interested parties, the council will need to adopt guidelines which govern the bidding process.

These will include:

- Advertising in local newspapers and trade journals.

- A time limit for proposing bids, which will more than likely last until sometime in July, according to Doug Schmitz, city administrator.

- The number of spaces the city wants the lot to hold.

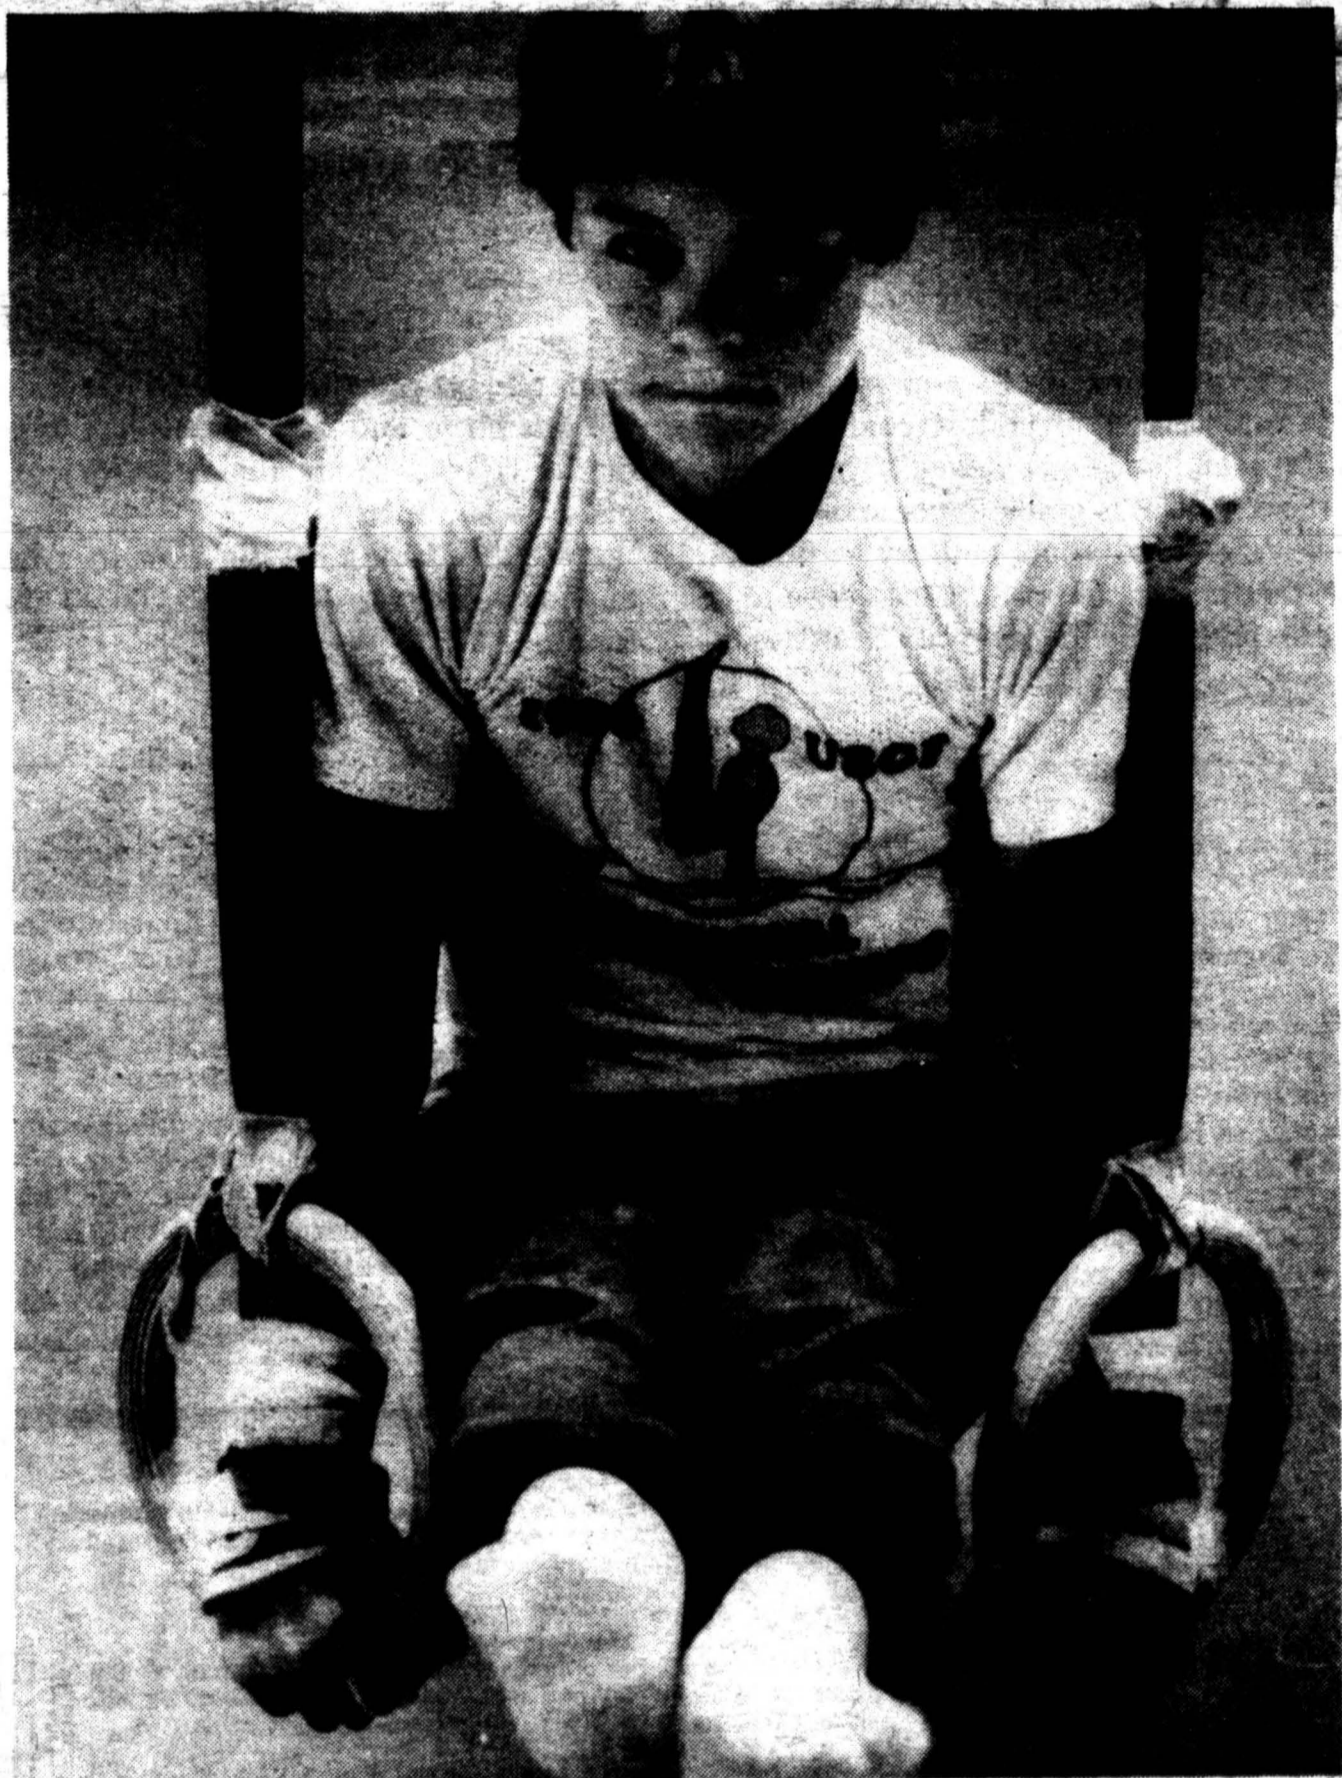

Currently there is a deficit of 500 parking spots daily in Carmel, according to Denise Duffy, a city consultant.

- It will need to be determined who will operate and maintain the property.

The EMC proposal showed a city park housed on top of the structure. It was unclear what cost that would be to the city.

- The council must decide who will be responsible for paying for the environmental impact report.

Brothers in arms

BROTHERS JOSHUA (above) and Jeremy (right) Cohen of Carmel Valley are headed for a U.S. Gymnastics Federation meet in Los Angeles this weekend; both have a chance to advance to the national competition, which would be a first for a Monterey Peninsula gymnast. Joshua, 12, a student at All Saints Episcopal Day School, and Jeremy, 15, a student at Robert Louis Stevenson School, both compete for the Monterey Gymnastics Center under the tutelage of Hiroshi Fujimoto. A third gymnast, Laura Didyk, 15, also of Carmel Valley, will join the brothers at the regional competition. Their story is on page 7. (Holly McFarland photos.)

Humanitarian gesture

Dear Editor:

These people who oppose new second-story apartments downtown don't understand the needs of those of us who work in Carmel and need to live close to our jobs because we no longer own cars. I look at these downtown apartments as opening a new world to those of us who love to be able to walk to the Sunset Center, the Carmel Foundation, the public library, our churches, the Carmel Plaza shopping center, etc. etc.! Also it's easy living to be able to select our groceries, and have them (and our bottled drinking water) delivered right to our apartments.

I wouldn't have been able to make it in Carmel if I hadn't been so lucky when I first found my downtown apartment here almost eight years ago.

Come on you objectors, try to see those new apartments in a humanitarian way, and we will thank you for it.

Naive and shortsighted

Dear Editor:

The mayor of Carmel must believe that the residents are very stupid indeed. As Clint arrogantly rails against merchant Paul Laub, calling his business a blight on the community, he must believe we have forgotten who shoved the T-shirts, buttons, pamphlets, and bumper stickers down the throat of this city during the election. Then, because it benefited Clint, it was OK.

Now that people laugh at Carmel as a tourist trap with a Coney Island boardwalk atmosphere; now that the gawking tour bus tourists are trashing the once lovely Carmel; now that Clint sees that he is the main tourist attraction we have; now, he gets outraged. Against who? Paul Laub? Is there anyone in Carmel (except Clint) who thought that Laub was going to shut down his merchandising of Eastwood on the mayor's say-so?

There are more T-shirt shops in town since Clint became mayor than ever before. There are more tourists. There is more high volume marketing junk than ever before. Let's face it, Carmel is becoming exactly what everyone who loved Carmel feared the most: a tacky tourist stop. It is Clintville; thanks to Clint.

Every good leader knows that fairness and consistency are tools necessary to achieve any worthwhile goal. If Clint wanted to stem the flood of cheap marketing sales items he should have taken that position from the beginning of his candidacy for mayor. He encouraged Paul Laub and the other merchants to cheapen the name of Carmel-by-the-Sea. If he regrets it now, he can only blame himself for being so naive and shortsighted.

Is theater needed?

Dear Editor:

In view of Patrick Franklin's excellent article in the May 5 Herald regarding funds for the arts on the Monterey Peninsula, I don't see how anyone could see a need for a larger theater in Carmel.

As I understand it, Sunset auditorium is not filled now except on rare occasions, so where are all the people going to come from to fill a much larger one? If there is such a need to encompass the whole peninsula plus Salinas, the Salinas highway would be a much more central location.

If the people who wish to add this theater to our present congestion think they are going to get patrons from the rest of the peninsula and Salinas then all the residents should be polled to find out how many times a year they think they would attend, how much they are willing to pay for tickets, and other information necessary before deciding on whether or not it is practical.

In addition to the lack of need in Carmel, Sunset Center is in a residential neighborhood and it would be unfair to the people living nearby to bring in even more people and cars than there are now. Even now in May it is difficult to walk and drive around.

In addition to the theater, a five-story garage is contemplated. This is outrageous in a town the size of Carmel. I feel sure that most of the people living here do not want to see it become a "city" or have to put up with more cars and pedestrians.

Let the people who want to "improve" Carmel with these projects donate the money to the present cultural activities which need financial help or go elsewhere with the large projects which are not in keeping with the small-town atmosphere we try to maintain here.

Many people can't afford to attend all they would like now and a larger theater with bigger and better shows would not fare all that well. Furthermore, a parking garage can be a pretty spooky place at night and I for one would not want to use it. Carmel has its crime, too, even though it is not always publicized. The only type of garage that would "fit" would be two or three stories with the top on a level with San Carlos.

In Mink Heaven

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank Richard Joseph Menn for his April 30 letter in regard to the Hospice benefit this March.

As for the letter early in April referring to the distaste of the person concerning the auctioning of a fur coat, I must say that I'm sure those little animals in Mink Heaven are smiling down on all who not only attended that splendid gathering, but especially on Jack Keller, Lewis Scott and Artie Earley who for three years in a row have worked long hours making the event a huge success.

And with those smiles they are saying "Thank you for allowing us in our own way to make a contribution via this event for alleviating human suffering in this community."

There is no one more for animal rights than I. Over the years I have saved many animals from certain extermination.

By the same token I wear leather shoes and carry leather purses and we all know where leather comes from.

But I am for human rights too and am delighted that for three years I have been privileged to not only contribute but attend these wonderful benefits.

I hope they continue.

Barbara Elliot

(Editor's note: Jack Keller, Lewis Scott and Artie Earley helped raise more than $27,500 for Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula at a benefit held at the Mission Orchard house March 29. Almost 100 merchants donated goods and services for the benefit.)

EDITOR'S DESK

By Mac McDonald

A gift horse

THE CARMEL City Council is looking a gift horse in the mouth and if it doesn't do something quick, the horse is going to bolt.

The council has the opportunity to accept a virtually "strings-free" $200,000 grant from the state Coastal Conservancy, as benign a state agency as they come.

The $200,000 will go toward Phase II of the Carmel Beach Restoration Project (total cost: $750,000), which includes a beach walkway along Scenic Drive, landscaping, benches and improved access to Carmel's popular beach. The money's practically in the bank.

The residents of this city have overwhelmingly voiced their support for the project, and have expressed so emphatically in three different polls, a town hall meeting, a beach walk and even at city council meetings.

The Beach Task Force, the city and conservancy staffs, the city council and planning commission, all have put in long, hard hours refining the project and incorporating the various public input that has been received.

If there have been any opponents of the project — and there have been a handful — they haven't (save for one clear exception) been very vocal (or visible) about their opposition to it. If they are so concerned why haven't they shown up to protest or offer constructive criticism?

The council's dallying on this project my ultimately result in the loss of the entire grant. Indications are strong that the conservancy may pull out if Carmel keeps wavering on its end of the deal. Wouldn't you, if you offered someone 200 grand and they balked? That means the $200,000 is going to come out of the city's — read yours and my — pocket. Other municipal projects may have to be put on hold while the city searches its own coffers for $200,000.

Hazardous to health

Dear Editor:

By man-made edict, the sins of Sodom and Gomorrah are no longer sins. Mind you, God did not say that. So far as we know, God has not changed his age-old stand against fornication, adultery, and perversion. True, some of His followers have gone astray, but His word has not changed.

The U.S. Surgeon General, Dr. Everett Koop, has warned that as many as 100 million people may die from AIDS by the year 2000. AIDS is perversion's cursed gift to a promiscuous world.

The Coastal Conservancy is simply interested in one thing: public access to the state's coastline. Its grants are to help cities attain those goals, not destroy them. If the city is concerned that there are too many strings or the conservancy may somehow "force" the city to do something it doesn't want to, the city can always give the money back and treat it as an interest-free loan. Some other community will gladly take the money.

One of the so-called "problems" with the grant now is a section entitled "Dedication" and reads simply:

"The grantee hereby permanently dedicates the property on which the Project will be constructed to public open space, trail, and recreational uses, and agrees that no other use of the property will be allowed."

That's it. Nothing more, nothing less. No high-rise hotels, no concrete volleyball courts on the beach.

The council wants to change the contract to add:

"...and those recreational uses consistent with the city's general plan..."

Sounds simple, but the conservancy doesn't want the general plan included in it because the general plan can (as evidenced these days) be revised depending on who's in office. The original statement is as plain and simple as the nose on one's face. The city council already has strong checks and balances to prevent concrete volleyball courts or other perceived "evils."

The city council should accept the grant and get on with it; it's time to take the gift horse and ride it, not kick it in the teeth, or as Councilman Bob Evans put it so succinctly:

"We'd be biting off our nose to spite our face if we turned down $200,000 in funding."
Amen.

Dr. Koop recommends more sex education in our schools. Koop further recommends that sex education be extended down into the lower grades. Neither Dr. Koop, other government authorities, or for that matter, the nation's educators say much about teaching Christian morality.

No one is saying anything about enforcing God's laws regarding punishment for fornication, adultery, and perversion. The idea seems to be to make such violations of God's law less hazardous to the sinner's health.

CHS struggles with open-closed campus issue

By DAVID LELAND

WHAT BEGAN as a simple classroom assignment for an environmental studies class has now escalated into a bona fide cause for Carmel High School students.

Should the campus be open or remain closed?

The issue stems around the noon to 12:30 p.m. slot when the students have a free period to eat lunch. Prior to the summer of 1984, pupils were allowed to leave the grounds and grab a bite to eat. But now, they are supposed to stay at school.

"I can't find one student that doesn't want an open campus," said junior Dysthe Benson, who circulated her petition for a teacher who assigned students to work on something they would like to change in their environment.

Benson said originally she thought that only 11th- and 12th-graders should have the privilege of leaving the grounds, but soon the petition gained steam and all students were included.

"I didn't want to bite off more than I could chew," she said, referring to her reticence at becoming an organizer.

Nevertheless, Benson presented her findings at last month's Carmel Unified School District board meeting. The concept immediately met with opposition from parent Louetta Langley.

"I would be very surprised if students would be for a closed campus," said Langley, who has one child graduating this June and another entering high school next September.

She added, "It wouldn't be very cool for students to say 'I'm for a closed campus.'"

Langley told The Pine Cone that initially the campus closed its noontime doors in response to the state-sponsored Peer Excellence Program.

That program was aimed at closing the state's campuses off from outside influences and making a total experience for the students while spending their day at school.

"We thought that Carmel would be the ideal place to strive for all-around excellence," Langley said.

But while second-semester seniors are currently able to leave the grounds with parental permission, it appears that almost any student is able to scurry off the grounds at will.

CARMEL High School junior Dysthe Benson has spearheaded a drive to open up the closed campus during noontime hours. Her petition, signed by the majority of students, has met with opposition from some parents. (Holly McFarland photo.)

That is one reason Benson said the issue of an open campus has not surfaced until recently.

"There's been no need to bring it up when you can beat the system," she said. "Physically you can't keep us here."

BENSON SAID that one of the primary reasons students want to leave the campus is for better food than the cafeteria offers.

Also, she said, students who smoke want to escape the bathrooms where they currently are forced to gather when lighting up.

But school administrators also cite several reasons which support keeping the students on board for the entire day.

Principally, the problem of logistics enters the picture. The students have just 30 minutes to leave their last class, get to their car, drive into Carmel or Carmel Valley, get something to eat and get back to class.

Vice-principal Joe Feldeisen remembers when the school campus was open. "It posed some problems with students getting back to class on time for fifth and sixth period."

If a student is more than 10 minutes late for class they are absent. With enough tardies and absences a student can find himself attending school on Saturday or even being dropped.

Moreover, Feldeisen said national educational studies show that schools having open-campus policies have more residential burglaries, vandalism, shoplifting, use of drugs and alcohol and car accidents.

He clarified, however, that those are national problems and that some may and some may not occur in Carmel if the school changes its policy.

Another reason given by those wishing the campus to remain closed is that unsavory characters were coming on the grounds to sell drugs when the campus was open.

But Feldeisen said an open campus really has very little impact on drug use and sales.

"If the kids weren't here, why would they (drug dealers) come on the campus and sell it?" he asked. Feldeisen added that the two parties could meet several blocks away from the grounds so it would not make sense they would meet at the school.

Benson and her followers believe the drug issue is just a ploy to get off the subject.

"We're not talking about drug traffic control," she said. "We're talking about open campus."

Currently, if a child leaves the grounds the school is no longer responsible for insurance, Feldeisen said.

Both Feldeisen and Carmel High Principal Marie Ishida said they would be OK with either decision. But if the campus is to remain closed there will have to be more noontime aides hired.

"The issue here is supervisors," said Ishida, who with Feldeisen and two aides are responsible for patrolling the entire grounds. "If we are going to have closed campus, we need help funding for campus supervisors."

Many times, Ishida said, she and Feldeisen are at meetings, which leaves only two people to enforce the closed-campus policy.

Noontime supervisors receive about $4.05 per hour, according to Vance Baldwin, assistant superintendent of CUSD.

Baldwin added that if the campus remains closed there could possibly be funds for hiring of two or three aides, the number Ishida said are needed to police the grounds.

"It would have to be a budget item," he said. "We don't have a pocketful of money right now."

Later this week, Benson, Ishida, Langley and Supt. Bob Infelise will meet in an attempt to hammer out differences.

"I think people really want to resolve this in the best possible way with the students," Langley said.

In all likelihood, the matter will be put to the test with the school board at its June meeting, with the students of Carmel High hoping to have an open campus by next September.

Clarification

IN LAST week's Pine Cone it was incorrectly reported that Ted Leidig made a presentation to the Carmel City Council.

Instead, the story should have read that Bob Leidig gave a report to the council.

Water board reworks its water conservation ordinance

By NANCY HILLS

CONSERVATION — easier said than done.

At its May 11 board meeting, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District redefined and re-defined portions of its district-wide water conservation ordinance.

Also, late in the evening the board approved hiring Planning Analysis and Development group to conduct an environmental impact report on the district's allocation system.

The report should be finished by October and will indicate whether the district water supply should be increased, decreased or remain the same.

The EIR and consultant is a part of the lawsuit settlement reached by the city of Carmel and the district.

Carmel sued the district over its allocation system after the city exceeded its annual water allotment. As a part of a settlement announced last week, Carmel will lend the district one half of the $50,000 it costs to complete the report.

Another part of the settlement is reduction of water use through conservation methods.

Though the district changed some of its provisions in its districtwide ordinance, the law would still require hotels and motels to install low-flow shower heads, implement a voluntary conservation kit distribution program and retrofitting to ultra-low flow fixtures in businesses and residences at time of sale.

The board went through item-by-item comments received about the ordinance from three of the district's six cities.

Some suggestions were included and some were rejected.

The meeting was planned as the first reading of the ordinance, but substantial changes in its makeup turned this first "first reading" into a public hearing. The first reading is now scheduled for June 8.

The district had also conducted a public hearing on the ordinance April 13.

If the complete program is successful, said district general manager Bruce Buel, it could save the peninsula 1,800 acre feet of water per year (1 acre foot equals 325,851 gallons).

The major changes included:

- At the suggestion of Director Nick Lombardo, all businesses must install faucet aerators and toilet flush reduction kits within 120 days of the ordinance becoming law. The board increased the time from 90 days to 120 days.

- Originally, only hotels and motels were required in that time period to install the water use reduction devices, including low-flow showerheads.

- That people who had already installed 3.5-gallon-per-flush toilets be exempt from installing 1.5-gallon toilets at time of sale.

- The ordinance states that all residences and businesses must install 1.5-gallon or less per flush toilets and other low-flow fixtures when sold. For businesses, that includes when there is a change of use.

- The district board exempted structures with 3.5-gallon flush toilets for 10 years, after which they would have to retrofit at the time of sale. The district board added, however, that 3.5-gallon-per-flush toilets will have to reduce water by 1 gallon with a toilet dam when sold before the 10 years is finished.

- Carmel requested that the kit program remain voluntary, which the majority of the board agreed with.

The plan is for the district to purchase and distribute to residents door-to-door, kits which contain two low-flow showerheads, faucet aerators and a toilet tank dam that reduces water consumption during each flush.

After distribution, the district would conduct a door-to-door follow-up program and offer help with installation if needed.

Water district general manager Bruce Buel said that homes with a gas water heater can save $40 a year with the kits and those with electric water heaters can save $140.

Directors Nick Lombardo and Karin Strasser Kauffman dissented on the vote.

"We've had a voluntary program, and it hasn't gotten us anywhere," Strasser Kauffman said, when backing Lombardo's statements that he believed it should be mandatory. Lombardo maintained that a mandatory program was the only way to achieve the conservation the district wanted.

Portions of the ordinance that remained unchanged include:

- A requirement that all new construction, commercial and residential, must be fitted with ultra-low flow fixtures, 1.5-gallon or less per flush toilets, 2.5-gallon or less per minute showerheads and faucet aerators.

- All existing businesses and residences must retrofit to ultra-low flow fixtures within 30 days of a change of ownership. Any remodel of more than 25 percent of floor area also must retrofit.

- The district is requesting that all cities within its boundaries and Monterey County adopt "companion" conservation ordinances.

The district is currently in negotiations with the Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency to share the cost of the kit program. The MRWPCA could reduce its sewage inflow by a million gallons a day if the program is successful, Buel said.

The district hopes to split the $650,000 program cost with MRWPCA, but the other agency would now like to reduce its portion of the cost, Buel told the board.

The board, however, continued with its approval of an ordinance that utilizes funds from a user fee it already collects to help pay for the project.

The district will fund its share of the program through a bond which will be paid back through property taxes it receives from the county and the user assessment fee already in place.

LATER IN the evening, the district board voted to add a 16,000 acre foot reservoir to the list of "feasible alternatives" in the proposed New San Clemente Dam's state and federal environmental impact reports.

That addition reduces the smallest reservoir size slated for detailed analysis from 20,000 acre feet to 16,000 acre feet. The reports will still analyze the performance of a 20,000 acre foot dam and the largest size, 29,000 acre feet.

With its computer model, district staff analyzed the performance of reservoirs as small as 9,000 acre feet and re-reviewed other alternatives that had been declared unfeasible in December. Only the reservoirs on Carmel River larger than 15,000 acre feet made the grade.

Henrietta Stern, district project coordinator, said the criteria included what drought reserve the projects would engender, the total water available for use, steelhead fish needs, benefit to Carmel River vegetation and how many months there would be some kind of rationing.

Also compared were total and per acre foot costs.

When the environmental impact report and environmental impact statement are certified later this year, the board will choose which project it will present to the voters for its advisory vote on the project in November.

Pine Inn to prepare a meal fit for a...pope

By DAVID LELAND

POPE JOHN Paul II and his entourage of 50 will get a taste of one of Carmel's oldest dining establishments come Sept. 17, when the Pine Inn will provide luncheon delights at the Carmel Mission Basilica.

The Pine Inn — selected from eager applicants peninsulawide — will donate food and services for the papal visit. A $2,000 luncheon is planned replete with historical touches, according to Doug Robertson, Pine Inn executive chef.

"We're trying to emphasize something to the effect of what the Indians ate," said Robertson, 34, who will be in charge of cooking and supervising the meal.

Well, it's not exactly what the Indians dined on, but the idea is to have mostly local fare.

The meal will begin with a corn chowder, followed by an entree of poached salmon with a white sauce, fresh vegetables grown locally, Mission bread — a special recipe originated by the Indians — and a California fruit tart for dessert.

Robertson said tentative plans revealed by the Diocese of Monterey have the pope dining at 1:30 p.m.

Earlier that day, the pope will say mass at Laguna Seca Raceway, about 15 miles from Carmel. He will then travel by helicopter to Carmel where he will visit the gravesite of Father Junipero Serra.

It is expected that the pope will address more than 100,000 people in his visits to Laguna Seca and the Carmel Mission before departing for San Francisco later that afternoon.

Not only will the meal be a simple one, Robertson said, but there will also be none of the trappings that might be expected to accompany such a momentous celebration.

"The idea behind it is we stated it wouldn't be an overstatement," said Robertson, whose idea it was for the Pine Inn to bid for the catering of the papal luncheon. "We're trying to keep it elegant but humble."

With this in mind, the waiters and staff will not be wearing tuxedos, he said. Instead, they will be "nicely dressed."

Robertson added that between six and eight waiters from the Pine Inn will be picked for the prestigious assignment.

That is not to say others would not cover the privilege of serving the pope.

"I've had millionaires come in and volunteer," said Robertson, who began his tenure with the Pine Inn January of 1986. "They'll do anything to get that close."

Instead, Robertson will pick the best-suited employees from the Pine Inn staff. But he doesn't want the dining room workers to have to do anything extraordinary for the honor.

"I don't want it used as a tool," said Robertson, referring to one manager's idea of having the employees judged on a week's performance. "I'll try to use it as a gift."

In addition to workers wearing simple attire, Robertson said the accoutrements will be less than glitzy.

Plates, cutlery and furnishings will be brought from the Pine Inn, he said. The only extra bought for the occasion will be souvenir menus.

As it stands right now, the pope and seven close advisors will dine in a separate room from the rest of the group, Robertson said.

Robertson said the staff will conduct two run-throughs to make sure all those involved know their job and the logistics involved.

For beverages, the papal party will be served two types of mineral water. One will be from the Napa Valley, while the other is from Carmel Valley distributor Durney Ranch.

No wine will be served.

"This is just a business meeting," said Patrice Larroque, general manager of the Pine Inn. "They have a very busy schedule."

ROBERTSON IS no stranger to cooking for special Catholic Diocese events. His most recent feast took place in the McMahon Room at the Mission during Christmas, when he provided a banquet for area priests.

He believes that cooking, for him, borders on a spiritual experience — not an earthly one.

"If I focus too much on money, I lose the gift," said Robertson, who at 19 made a decision to pursue his interests in cooking.

After almost dying in a car crash near his home town of Detroit, Robertson said he had about three months to contemplate his future.

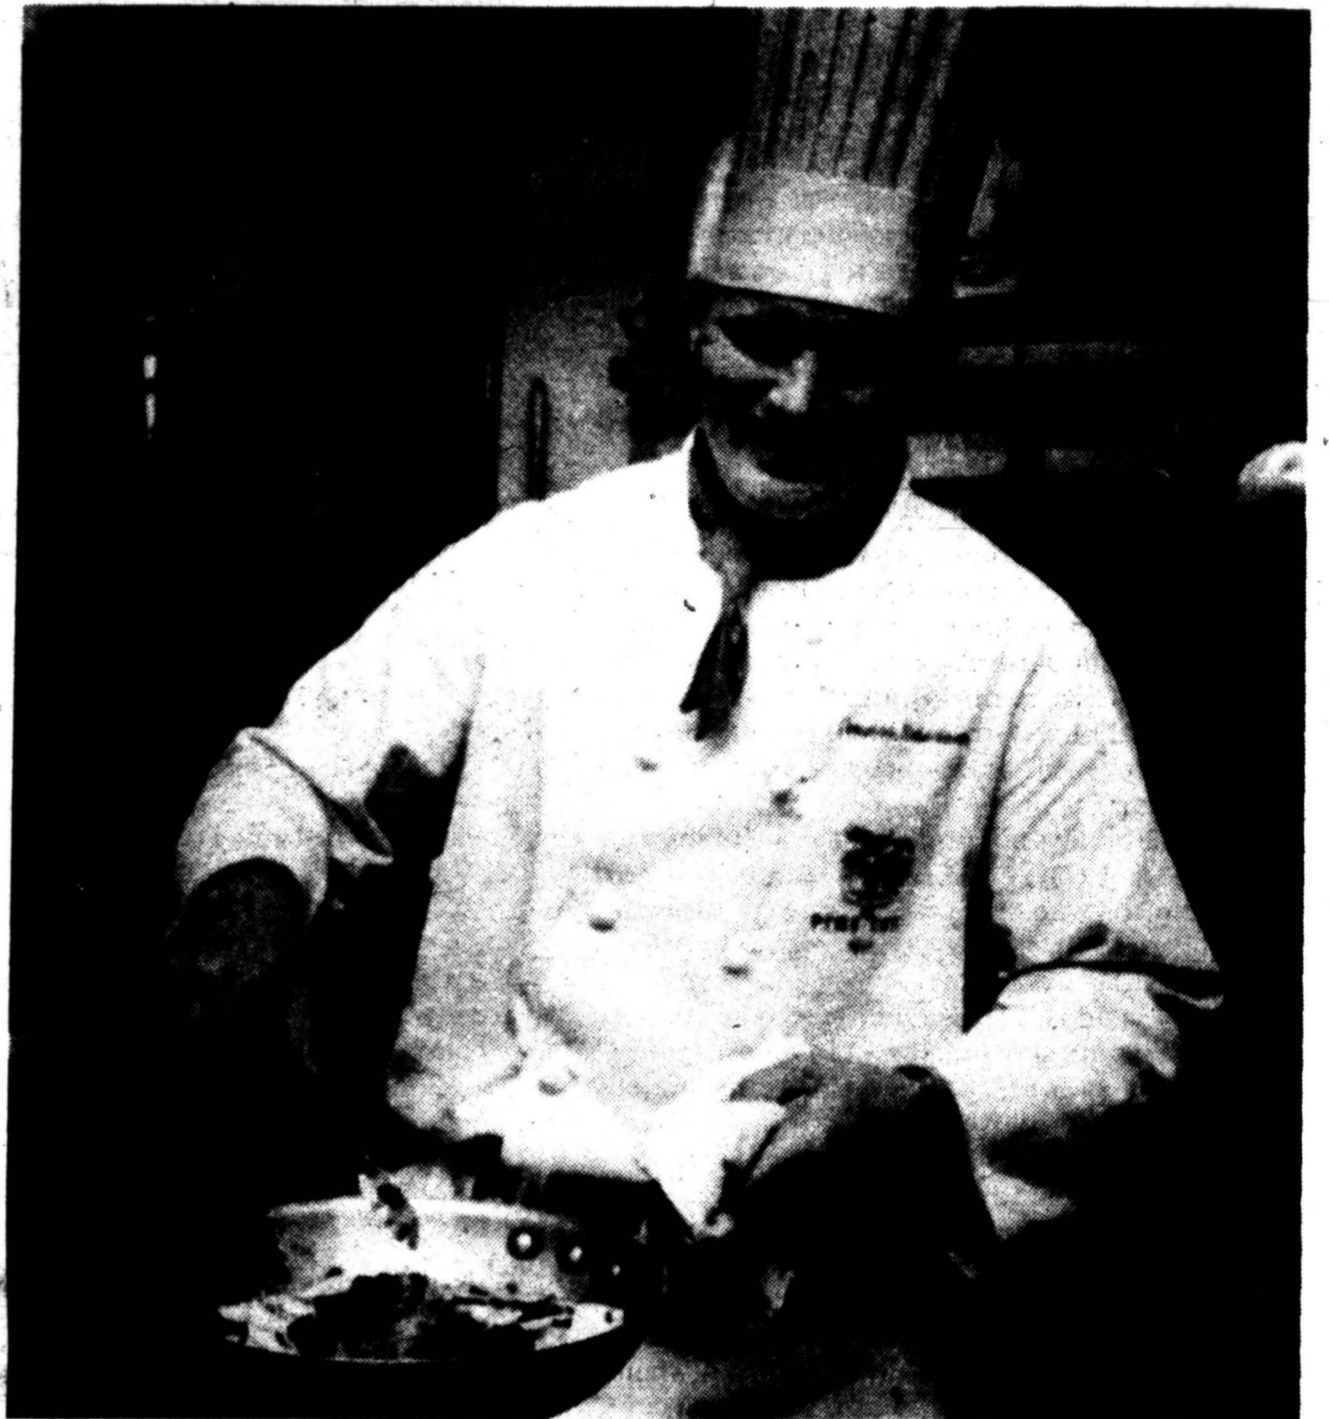

"I felt real proud about cooking," he said, referring to his decision to pursue cooking rather than sports, his other option. "People

liked what I cooked."

After deciding what course he would travel, he took his life savings of $800 and went to Hawaii, where he underwent a three-year apprenticeship at the Kahala Hilton under a master chef.

From there, he moved to Monterey where he prepared food at the Sardine Factory and then moved onto the Pine Inn. He also operates his own catering business, California Kron's.

Robertson serves as a youth minister at San Carlos Church in Monterey, where he works with teenagers once a week.

FOR THE past 18 months, Doug Robertson has been serving as executive chef at the Pine Inn. While he will not be serving Pope John II flaming pepper steak (as shown here), the pope will no doubt be delighted with a lunch of poached salmon prepared by Robertson. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Carmel Foundation willed estate worth $1.2 million

A CARMEL couple, Ruth and Robert A. Norton have willed an estate valued at $1.2 million to The Carmel Foundation to support its program for seniors in the area, Robert W. Priestley, president of the foundation announced Monday.

Robert Norton, who was Carmel's police chief from 1935 to 1939, died April 11, 1985, and his wife, Ruth W. Norton, died November 4, 1986. They resided on Dolores Street on property adjoining the foundation's headquarters at Eighth and Lincoln.

The Nortons specified, Priestley said, that their bequest was to be used "for the purpose of making improvements in existing buildings, including furnishings and equipment, or to assist in the purchase of land or in constructing new buildings."

"This is the largest bequest in the foundation's 37-year history," Priestley said. "It comes at an appropriate time when the foundation's aging residential units for seniors require constant improvement and repair, and when we are considering new low-income housing construction for seniors in Carmel. The Nortons' thoughtful generosity will have a lasting impact upon the quality and scope of the foundation's many programs for seasoned citizens of this area."

Richard M. Nystrom, executor of the Norton Estate, said that the assets consist of cash and securities in the approximate amount of $525,000 and real estate holdings in Pacific Grove and Carmel. Carmel Martin, Jr. was the Nortons' attorney for more than 10 years and recalls their strong desire to help the elderly who retired in the Carmel area years ago but find it increasingly difficult to maintain their living standards because of limited resources. Martin said that the Nortons felt so blessed to live here without financial worries and just wanted to help those who were not so fortunate.

Nystrom added that remaining family members in Michigan were "happy with the disposal of this estate," and added that the Nortons' nephew, Dr. Johann Elliot, remarked "Good for Auntie Ruth," when told of the bequest.

The Nortons were long-time residents of Carmel. Norton was born in Pacific Grove and moved to Carmel at the age of three. He married Ruth Wyndbladh on March 20, 1926, in Carmel.

Following service in World War I, Norton returned to Carmel to live and become Carmel's second police chief. After retiring from law enforcement he was active in real estate and insurance for many years in the community. He was a familiar figure in the village because of his daily strolls around town.

Ruth Norton taught school in Alameda and San Francisco counties until her marriage. Interested in music, she was an accomplished organist.

Priestley said the foundation's board of directors will decide when the estate is distributed, how the funds can best be used and how much of the estate will be placed in the foundation's building endowment.

The foundation conducts more than 40 classes and workshops weekly for its membership of 3,000 seniors at its building complex on Lincoln. It maintains low-income senior housing for 21 residents at Trevett and Haseltine Courts in downtown Carmel, and a residential care facility. It also provides a wide variety of social work services for seniors, low-cost luncheons, weekend home delivered meal service, and regular bus trips to the Bay Area for theater, musical and other cultural events. The Carmel Foundation was founded in 1950 as "an adventure in neighborliness" for the senior citizens of the Carmel area.

FORMER CARMEL Police Chief Robert A. Norton (1935-39) and his wife Ruth have willed an estate valued at $1.2 million to The Carmel Foundation, the largest bequest in its history. Long-time residents of Carmel, Robert died in early 1985 and his wife in late 1986.

Pine Inn to prepare a meal fit for a...pope

By DAVID LELAND

POPE JOHN Paul II and his entourage of 50 will get a taste of one of Carmel's oldest dining establishments come Sept. 17, when the Pine Inn will provide luncheon delights at the Carmel Mission Basilica.

The Pine Inn — selected from eager applicants peninsulawide — will donate food and services for the papal visit. A $2,000 luncheon is planned replete with historical touches, according to Doug Robertson, Pine Inn executive chef.

"We're trying to emphasize something to the effect of what the Indians ate," said Robertson, 34, who will be in charge of cooking and supervising the meal.

Well, it's not exactly what the Indians dined on, but the idea is to have mostly local fare.

The meal will begin with a corn chowder, followed by an entree of poached salmon with a white sauce, fresh vegetables grown locally, Mission bread — a special recipe originated by the Indians — and a California fruit tart for dessert.

Robertson said tentative plans revealed by the Diocese of Monterey have the pope dining at 1:30 p.m.

Earlier that day, the pope will say mass at Laguna Seca Raceway, about 15 miles from Carmel. He will then travel by helicopter to Carmel where he will visit the gravesite of Father Junipero Serra.

It is expected that the pope will address more than 100,000 people in his visits to Laguna Seca and the Carmel Mission before departing for San Francisco later that afternoon.

Not only will the meal be a simple one, Robertson said, but there will also be none of the trappings that might be expected to accompany such a momentous celebration.

"The idea behind it is we stated it wouldn't be an overstatement," said Robertson, whose idea it was for the Pine Inn to bid for the catering of the papal luncheon. "We're trying to keep it elegant but humble."

With this in mind, the waiters and staff will not be wearing tuxedos, he said. Instead, they will be "nicely dressed."

Robertson added that between six and eight waiters from the Pine Inn will be picked for the prestigious assignment.

That is not to say others would not covet the privilege of serving the pope.

"I've had millionaires come in and volunteer," said Robertson, who began his tenure with the Pine Inn January of 1986. "They'll do anything to get that close."

Instead, Robertson will pick the best-suited employees from the Pine Inn staff. But he doesn't want the dining room workers to have to do anything extraordinary for the honor.

"I don't want it used as a tool," said Robertson, referring to one manager's idea of having the employees judged on a week's performance. "I'll try to use it as a gift."

In addition to workers wearing simple attire, Robertson said the accoutrements will be less than glitzy.

Plates, cutlery and furnishings will be brought from the Pine Inn, he said. The only extra bought for the occasion will be souvenir menus.

As it stands right now, the pope and seven close advisors will dine in a separate room from the rest of the group, Robertson said.

Robertson said the staff will conduct two run-throughs to make sure all those involved know their job and the logistics involved.

For beverages, the papal party will be served two types of mineral water. One will be from the Napa Valley, while the other is from Carmel Valley distributor Durney Ranch.

No wine will be served.

"This is just a business meeting," said Patrice Larroque, general manager of the Pine Inn. "They have a very busy schedule."

ROBERTSON IS no stranger to cooking for special Catholic Diocese events. His most recent feast took place in the McMahon Room at the Mission during Christmas, when he provided a banquet for area priests.

He believes that cooking, for him, borders on a spiritual experience — not an earthly one.

"If I focus too much on money, I lose the gift," said Robertson, who at 19 made a decision to pursue his interests in cooking.

After almost dying in a car crash near his home town of Detroit, Robertson said he had about three months to contemplate his future.

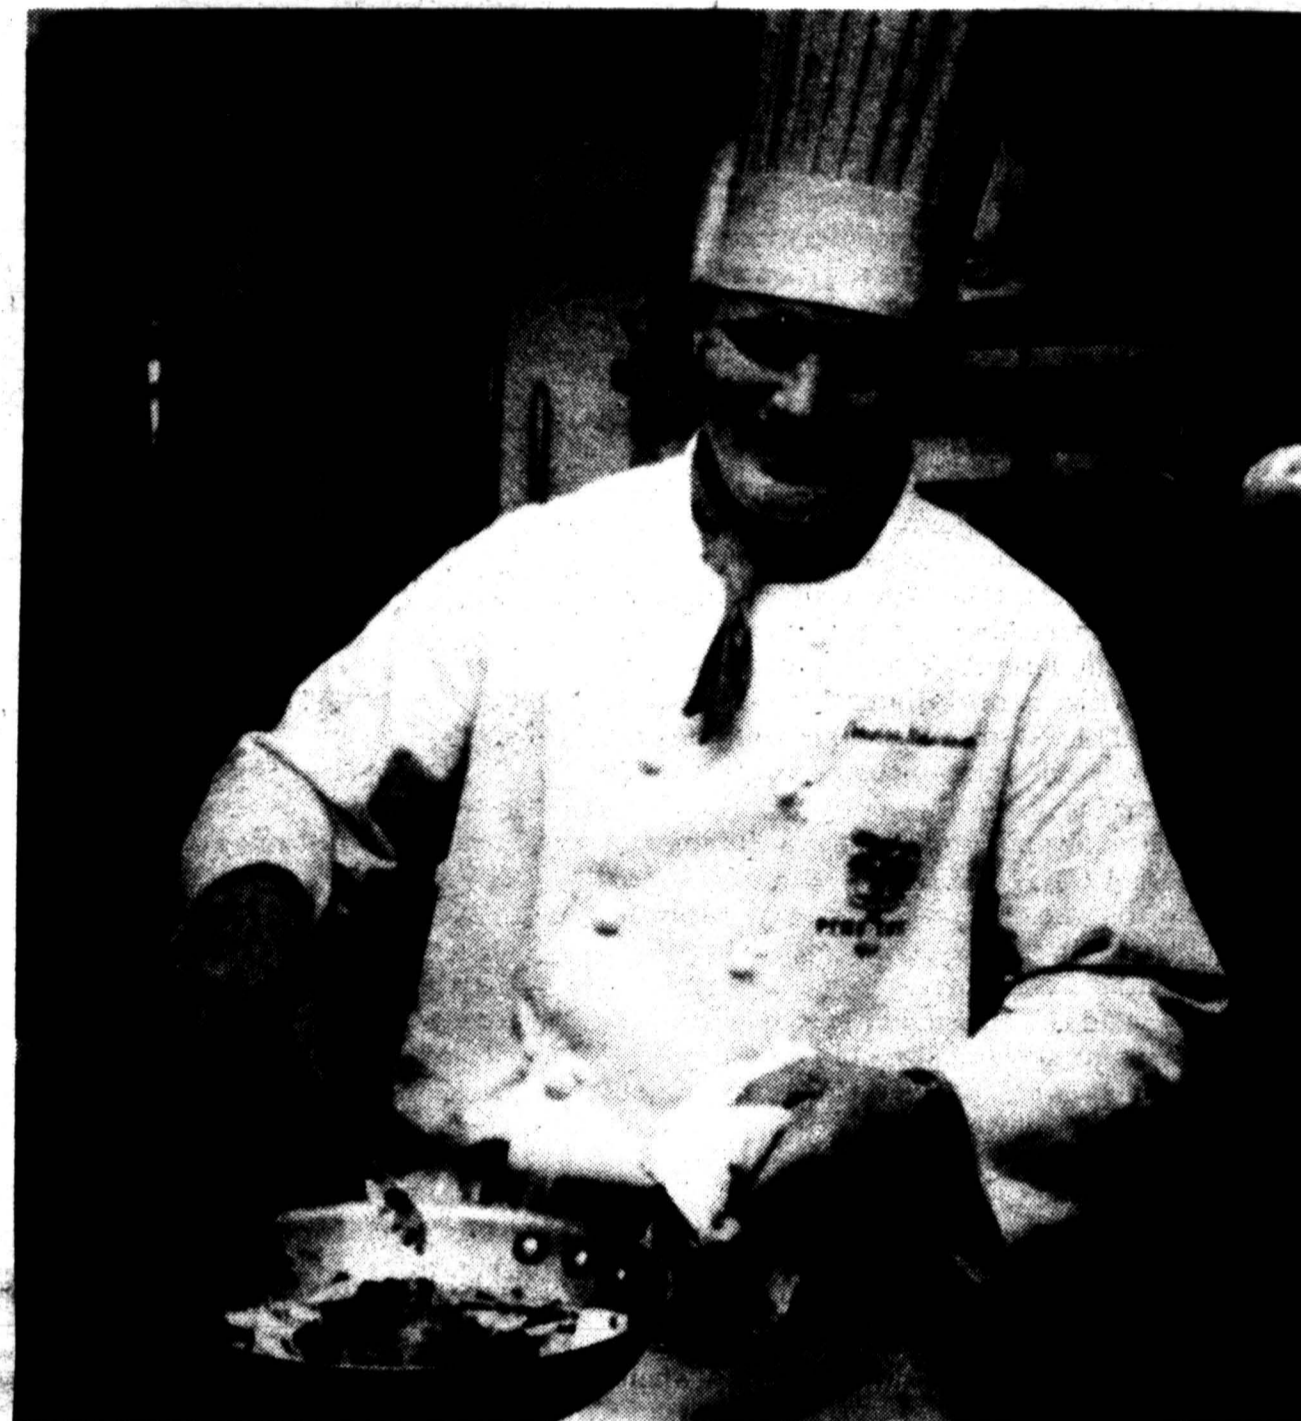

"I felt real proud about cooking," he said, referring to his decision to pursue cooking rather than sports, his other option. "People

liked what I cooked."

After deciding what course he would travel, he took his life savings of $800 and went to Hawaii, where he underwent a three-year apprenticeship at the Kahala Hilton under a master chef.

From there, he moved to Monterey where he prepared food at the Sardine Factory and then moved onto the Pine Inn. He also operates his own catering business, California Kron's.

Robertson serves as a youth minister at San Carlos Church in Monterey, where he works with teenagers once a week.

FOR THE past 18 months, Doug Robertson has been serving as executive chef at the Pine Inn. While he will not be serving Pope John II flaming pepper steak (as shown here), the pope will no doubt be delighted with a lunch of poached salmon prepared by Robertson. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Carmel Foundation willed estate worth $1.2 million

A CARMEL couple, Ruth and Robert A. Norton have willed an estate valued at $1.2 million to The Carmel Foundation to support its program for seniors in the area, Robert W. Priestley, president of the foundation announced Monday.

Robert Norton, who was Carmel's police chief from 1935 to 1939, died April 11, 1985, and his wife, Ruth W. Norton, died November 4, 1986. They resided on Dolores Street on property adjoining the foundation's headquarters at Eighth and Lincoln.

Flood control project helped by CV master plan

By DAVID LELAND

AFTER BEING put on hold for more than six years, a $1 million flood control project destined for the Carmel River should be one of the direct recipients of the recent adoption of the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

And, with the exclusion of the Odello property from the master plan, all that needs to be decided is the tradeoff between the county and the Odellos regarding the building density which will be allowed on a development proposed by the Odellos.

The Odellos will not have to be subject to the allocation system of the Carmel Valley Master Plan, which provides for a limited annual buildout.

The Odellos own the 134-acre artichoke field on the south side of the Carmel River and have fought for 20 years to build on the property. Plans now include an unspecified number of condominiums, restaurant and farmer's market.

The maximum density allowed for the 54 acres that is safe to build on near the foothills of the land, as stipulated in the Carmel Land Use Plan, is 162 units.

Currently, the county is awaiting plans from the Odellos requesting how many units they wish to develop on the property, said Owen Stewart, development service engineer with the county flood project.

In return for being allowed increased density, the Odellos will lower their levee on the south side of the Carmel River.

In the case of a 100-year flood, the water would drain into farm land instead of commercial use, such as the Barnyard, on the north side of the river.

"It seemed like a good solution to lower the south bank," Owen said. He added that the Odellos will need to raise the land they develop so any new units will not be in danger in case of flood.

The only glitch in the county's flood control plans could occur if the Odellos are denied a building permit because of the countywide building moratorium because of low rainfall.

But 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman said the county wants and needs the flood control project and will have one soon.

"We will proceed with the flood control project with or without the Odellos," she said.

She added that she expects the county and the Odellos will be able to work out an agreement.

And for her part, Bruna Odello said she will move forward with her project even if the county will not grant her permits.

"We have underground springs on our property," she said. "We'll get water from them."

But county officials are planning on reaching an accord with the Odellos that will facilitate moving forward with financing for the project.

THE FLOOD control project would include lowering the south levee, improvements on the north bank upstream from Rio Road, improving the Mission Fields levee and construction of a levee that runs perpendicular to the river tying into high ground.

To finance the project, which will take "a few months" to complete once it is started, the county will form an assessment district, Stewart said.

The assessment district will gain money from property owners by reassessing the value of the land.

Under Proposition 13, it is illegal to tax property outright, Stewart said.

It was in 1981 that the Federal Emergency Management Agency determined the levees on the north bank of the river were not adequate to protect the area against a major flood, according Stewart.

Moreover, the federal agency found that when floodwater reached the lower river, it would be restricted by the two levees which would make the channel too small.

A 100-year flood is a statistical event, or a way of measuring significant amounts of watershed, Stewart said. He added that the last amount of rainfall that would qualify for this category in the Carmel Valley would have occurred in 1911.

But that does not mean the next flood is due in the year 2011. He reminded the The Pine Cone that he was speaking in purely statistical terms.

"It doesn't necessarily happen every 100 years," he said. "We might have floods two years in a row."

A good example, Stewart said, is that if you have a 30-year mortgage on your home, you have better than a one-in-four chance of seeing a flood of the 100-year type.

Carmel Valley athletes have leg up on competition

By HOLLY MCFARLAND

CARMEL VALLEY'S Joshua and Jeremy Cohen hope they have all the right moves.

Both brothers will be competing in the U.S. Gymnastics Federation meet May 16 and 17 in Los Angeles and both are members of the Monterey Gymnastics Center, coached by Hiroshi Fujimoto.

Joshua, 12, a student at All Saints Episcopal Day School, will be competing in the compulsory events. Older brother Jeremy, 15, a student at Robert Louis Stevenson School, will be competing in both compulsory and optional routines.

"This is the first time Monterey County has sent any boys to the regionals," said Fujimoto. "If Jeremy scores a 98 or above in the Los Angeles meet he will proceed to the nationals."

Fujimoto also indicated that the nationals, to be held in mid-June at University of California at Los Angeles, will attract about 250 top-level gymnasts from around the country.

"Should Jeremy score high enough at the regionals this month it will also be the first time anyone has represented Monterey County at the nationals," Fujimoto added.

Another Carmel Valley contender in the regionals in May was 15-year-old Laura Didyk, a sophomore at Carmel High School. Laura, who traveled to Park City, Utah on May 3, competed in the bars, vaults, beam and floor exercises. The Utah meet represented gymnasts from Nevada, Utah, Arizona and California.

Didyk competed in various county, state and regional meets this season but was hampered by an injury and did not place.

"I was disappointed because I couldn't qualify to compete both days because of sore shins and it hurt my overall score because judges combine points from both days," Didyk said. "Yet, I still kept a high enough score to keep in the regionals."

While traveling, working at least eight to 10 hours a week at the gym, and preparing for various meets, the 1992 Olympics are still not a faraway goal for the Carmel Valley competitors.

The inevitable question for the local gymnasts is at what point in their career would they be prepared to compete at such a high level as the Olympics?

Cracking a smile, Jeremy replied, "I don't know if I could make it to Olympics because there are a lot of kids better, but a lot of kids get into gymnastics for a short time and get out; you have to keep working on it."

To keep the 1992 Olympics in view, both Cohens attended the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo. last fall. Fujimoto participated at the training center also, representing California, Nevada, Arizona, Hawaii as a training coach.

Fujimoto, a soft-spoken director of the local gym in Monterey, has high hopes for his group of burgeoning athletes.

"The Olympics is not an unrealistic goal for Jeremy," he said. "It's possible; his peak will usually be at a college level and he's only 15. Getting Jeremy to place at the national level by the time he is a freshman in college will mean he will stand a good chance for international competition in the Olympics."

DOLLARS & SENSE

By Anthony Piazza & Marshall Bloom

The option is yours

SEVERAL WEEKS ago we were shocked to find that someone had stolen the stairway leading up to the Pine Cone offices from the San Carlos street sidewalk.

"Stair-napper!" we shouted aloud before a voice from above directed us to the retractable fire escape.

Up the fire escape we scooted. "What's up, Mac?" we inquired of the Pine Cone's legendary managing editor.

"Construction going on next door." We paused and surveyed the scene. Carmel was as peaceful as it ever gets at nine in the a.m.

"Say, boys." "Yes, Mac."

"Your articles generally take such a sensible cautious point of view that our readers who are of a more speculative bent may think you two are downright stodgy."

"We're the stodgiest," Bloom offered with a smile.

"Stodge City," Piazza added.

"I'm almost afraid to ask the two of you about a more speculative aspect of the market."

"Namely?"

"Options."

"What about them, Mac?"

"Do you recommend their use?"

"It depends," Bloom began. "If you're aware of the risks, options can help you catch an expected rise or fall in a stock with a tremendous degree of leverage."

"But the killer in options is not the risk that you can be right or wrong about the expected direction of the stock. The problem is time. Options generally expire in three-month intervals. If your stock hasn't moved the way you'd like, your option can become worthless because time simply runs out on your contract. That's the risk most options players never fully appreciate."

Mac watched the occasional tourist stroll by down below.

"So what you're saying is that a person could lose 100 percent of his investment in an option if time runs out. Is that right?"

"Absolutely."

"Then you two, conservatives that you are, never have anything to do with options?"

Both Piazza and Bloom remained silent, the hint of a smile barely perceptible on each of their faces.

"Why are you guys smiling?"

"We do have something to do with options, an ultra-conservative approach."

"If options are speculative, how can they be used in a conservative manner?"

Bloom said, "The answer requires a column or two telling the tale of our most famous case as investment detectives, The Covered Call Caper."

Piazza began, "It all started one windy night while we drove down the Carmel Valley Road. We were trying to figure out what happened to the money, the dollars that the speculators lost in the options market. Where, we wondered, does all that money go? When someone buys an option and stands to lose all his money, who stands to keep all that money?"

Mac interrupted, "Sounds fascinating, boys, write it up. This may replace Play Misty for Me as the peninsula's best known thriller."

Next Week: Part I of The Covered Call Caper.

(Messrs. Piazza and Bloom, associate vice presidents at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., can be contacted for additional information at 373-1861 or P.O. Box 631, Monterey 93940.)

Fashionable class

CARMEL HIGH School has a more than ample supply of solid classes. At the same time, Carmel maintains some very creative electives that interest a variety of students, such as the Fasions Merchandising Class.

Coordinated by Mrs. Diane Frode, the Fashion Merchandising Class is included in the ROP program which allows students from other high schools on the peninsula to participate in the class. The Carmel High Fashion Merchandising Class receives student commuters from Pacific Grove and Seaside High schools.

A typical day in the Fashion Merchandising Class might include such activities as creating promotional collages for display in the main office or presenting fashionable items for class discussion. Currently the students are engaged in a job search project. Students choose jobs they would like to explore within the fashion industry and write synopses about their particular job. Students are to gather information from interviews and literature pertaining to their subject.

Last month, the Fashion Merchandising Class put on the "Masquerade" Fashion Show at Sunset Theatre. Sixteen girls and nine boys sported fashions from Contempo's, Miller's Outpost, Dick Bruhn and On The Beach. The clothing ranged from aerobic to nautical to safari to romantic wear. And of course with the finale came the formal gowns and tuxedos, in view of the upcoming senior prom in May. The whole show was coordinated by two students from Carmel High, Lanika Jones and Allison Ryan.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

MORE THAN 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes twice a month all year. The following classes are offered:

- 6 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, June 2 and Thursday, June 4.

All classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $15 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

EDITORIAL: PAY DIRT

A year or so ago the writer let out a squawk right in public about the folly of the city allowing its streets to wash out to sea every rainy season and then going to the expense of hauling in more dirt to fill up the erosion gullies. The same old method still obtains and we all pay for the dirt that each year is used as filler. It is about time the taxpayers demand some more economical method of street repair, if the taxpayers care a hoot as to who pays and pays and pays and gets nothing but ruts in the end.

PLANNERS DECIDE CITY SHOULD BUY GREENBELT

During a study session yesterday afternoon, Carmel planning commissioners re-emphasized dune property at the north end of the beach and a wooded canyon running along the eastern city boundary as prime objectives in any greenbelt acquisition program for the city.

Last Thursday in the first study session on the greenbelt acquisition program, undertaken at the request of the city council, commissioners first selected these two areas as most important in carrying out greenbelt provisions of the general plan for Carmel.

LIQUOR MORATORIUM EXTENDED

The Carmel City Council extended its moratorium on new business establishments serving alcoholic beverages — but indicated the moratorium would only last for another two months.

The four-month old moratorium was technically extended for an additional eight months by the council Monday night, but council members promised to terminate it on July 11, after approval of the planning commission's proposed standards and monitoring system.

With a reminder that the issue was a proliferation of bars, not the number of restaurants, Councilman Mike Brown asked that Mayor Gunnar Norberg and Councilman David Hughes limit their discussion to that issue.

Ambitious parking plan runs into some obstacles

• In case the operation fails, it must be determined who will take charge of the parking lot.

Under the EMC plan, which was a 55-year lease at $1 per year to the city in return for building the garage, the bank would operate the lot in case of default.

ALSO AT Monday's meeting the council will hear a re-working of some language used in the state Coastal Conservancy's $200,000 grant proposal.

At the May 5 council meeting, councilmembers were wary of language contained in both the dedication and the recreational use sections of the proposal.

The $200,000 grant would be applied to the $750,000 Phase II of the Carmel Beach Restoration Project, which will provide, among other things, a walkway along Scenic Road.

At the recent council meeting, members directed city staff to inform the conservancy that language used in its proposal should be consistent with Carmel's general plan.

But, according to Greg D'Ambrosio, director of administrative services, the conservancy did not want that wording in the contract because general plans can be changed with a change in the makeup of the city council.

CARMEL SEEKS GREATER WATER ALLOCATION

Carmel is ready to go to war with the Monterey Peninsula Water Management

District over its municipal water allocation.

Carmel City Administrator Doug Peterson believes a technical adjustment in the allocation scheme could yield the city an additional yearly supply of water.

City council members agree that Carmel has somehow come out on the short end of the water deal, and they have authorized Peterson to approach the water district for an increase.

Super success for Monterey Concours

THERE WAS "a gathering of elegance" (the French call it conours) at the Monterey County Fairgrounds on sunny Saturday last, when a nostalgic euphoria engulfed 4,000 spectators during the Second Annual Monterey Concours d'Elegance. Antique and classic cars were assembled for fans to feast their eyes on, and isn't everybody in America an auto fan?

It was simply a day of fun for fans, families, and car owners alike, presented to bring in money for Meals on Wheels (which has been operating at borrowed facilities at three locations). The agency will be housed in the Senior Center in Pacific Grove when it is finished. Groundbreaking for the building is imminent.

Concours parties started Friday night with a welcome to the judges, car owners and guests at the Hyatt Regency Monterey, one of the sponsors along with MPTV and Pepsi. The Patrons Circle semi-circled the ramp and featured a catered luncheon just prior to the Class Awards Presentations Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m. It ended Sunday with a peninsula driving tour and brunch for all those involved.

France first started conours (or gatherings) to view the finest carriages in the country. The coachbuilder's art is still great fun and best seen in competition where judges check everything for authenticity.

This past weekend car classes ranged from pre-1915, to classics, up to 1965, with classes exclusively for Rolls Royce and Bentley, for MGs, for 1955-57 Thunderbirds (which took the American public's fancy by storm). They added variety and pleased the crowd by including commercial and agricultural vehicles, pre-1900 bicycles and motorcycles through 1958.

Featured cars were the Cadillac (which dates back to 1903 when its nearest rival for quality was Mercedes-Benz, the Rolls, Lincoln and Imperial) and the Aston Martin which goes back to 1914, and apart from Morgan, is the oldest private specialist auto producer. It has maintained a consistent image of a sporting vehicle — beautifully finished, blindingly fast, and instantly recognizable. Someone said, "There has never been a dull Aston Martin."

At 2 p.m. event chair Gary Duffel welcomed one and all, then turned the mike over to announcer Dr. Paul Woudenberg, who was clearly relaxed and thoroughly enjoyed every car winner brought to the ramp. His commentary was accurate (he is an antique car authority), but he added a lot of light entertaining banter as well, saying, "Mr. and Mrs. Francis Duveneck (Monterey) get 30 miles on a tank of water in their 1900 Locomobile Runabout." (That's steam power, of course.) They came in first in the Horseless Carriage (through 1915) class.

Patrons decked out in summer hats and frocks basked in the sun as they watched and applauded Carmel winners John Van Zander (for his 1931 Model A Ford Roadster — original cost $475); Jim Wester (owner of an immaculate 1960 VW Bug — with only 5,000 miles); Mason Case (1954 T F Roadster MG); Howard Raphael (first for his 1951 TD Roadster painted clipper blue); Andrew Spranza (second for his 1956 Rolls Royce Silver Cloud Saloon - one of 16 made) and third for his '58 Ariel Square 4 Motorcycle (which wouldn't fire-up for the first ramp trip, but a few minutes later came roaring over — the wrong way). In the last good collecting year Jack and Toni Miller (Carmel Valley) were second with a '66 Hardtop Thunderbird. They delighted viewers by demonstrating the magic mechanism for closing the top. "Oohs" and "ahs" were the audible reaction.

Pacific Grove's Morgan Crawford came in second with his 1962 Morgan Roadster as Dr. Woudenberg said, "The Morgan is a cult car owned by fanatics who hold meetings in dark cellars." PG's Richard James was third with his 1929 Cadillac Phaeton V-8.

From Pebble Beach Eleanor Estes took top prize with her 1932 J2 Roadster ("Which goes 80 miles per hour on a good day — downhill," Paul quipped.) Emily Woudenberg drives Paul's Postwar '54 Jaguar XK-120HC (all original) to work every day and drove it up the ramp as third-place winner at the concours. Dr. Charles Spangenger drove up the ramp with his wife and two children in his second-place winner, a 1935 Bentley Drophead Coupe, 3 1/2 litre, Park Ward; Loran List (sole owner) won second prize for a 1965 DB5 Aston Martin.

Monterey winners were David Aliotti, Larry Sullivan, David Wald, and from Salinas were Eugene Gee, Granite Construction, Jim Teves and Ray Homan. A first place was won by Eric Coyne of Del Rey Oaks.

Sponsors Trophy went to John Harris of Tiburon; Honorary Judges Trophy to Jack Hilton and Best of Show went to Robert Meyer of King City for his bright red (color selected by his wife) Packard Convertible Coupe (only one of two left).

Nicole Duffel presented the awards and those assisting Gary Duffel are too numerous to mention all. Here are a few who worked to raise money for MOW: David Daniel (car advisory board), Windom Estes (chief judge), Peggy Compton Honorary judges were Michael Albov, (chair MOW), Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood, Allen Funt, Maj. Gen (ret) S.L. McCellan, Rep. Leon Panetta, Jim Tunney, Alton Walker and Hornsby Wasson (Pacific Bell).

A Post-Show Gala was held at the Hyatt Saturday evening with buffet and dancing.

"TWISTIN' YOUR HEART AWAY"

Remember when The Twist was the latest dance craze? along with poodle skirts, flat-top haircuts, Melmac dishes, "I Like Ike" buttons? When stars were Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis (who recently kissed and made up), Ronald Reagan and Doris Day (wonder what happened to them?), Fats Domino, Elvis Presley and McDonald's began its climb to hamburger fame.

A lot of people remembered (along with some too young to) by reliving "Prom Night," complete with boutonnieres, red carnation wristlets, jacket and wrist dance cards, and swinging music by Close E. Nuff.

The fun affair was "Twistin' Your Heart Away" Prom to benefit the Central Mission Trails Chapter of the American Heart Association. All for research and education to benefit all our hearts.

The De Anza Ballroom, Doubletree Inn, was decorated stunningly in red and white. Entrance was made via a walk-through heart to see red/white tables, red hearts adorning the walls, and balloons festively inviting you to stay and dance your heart out. Many did just that. The band generously donated extra time for dancing hearts until 2 a.m.

Queen of the prom was Patty Qualls, who won by collecting $615 (for dance on her card) and Richard Rudisill was declared Prom King, with $425 on his card for only 10 dances. Sharon Reagan, who collected $200 for one dance won two tickets to Disneyland and the airfare to get there.

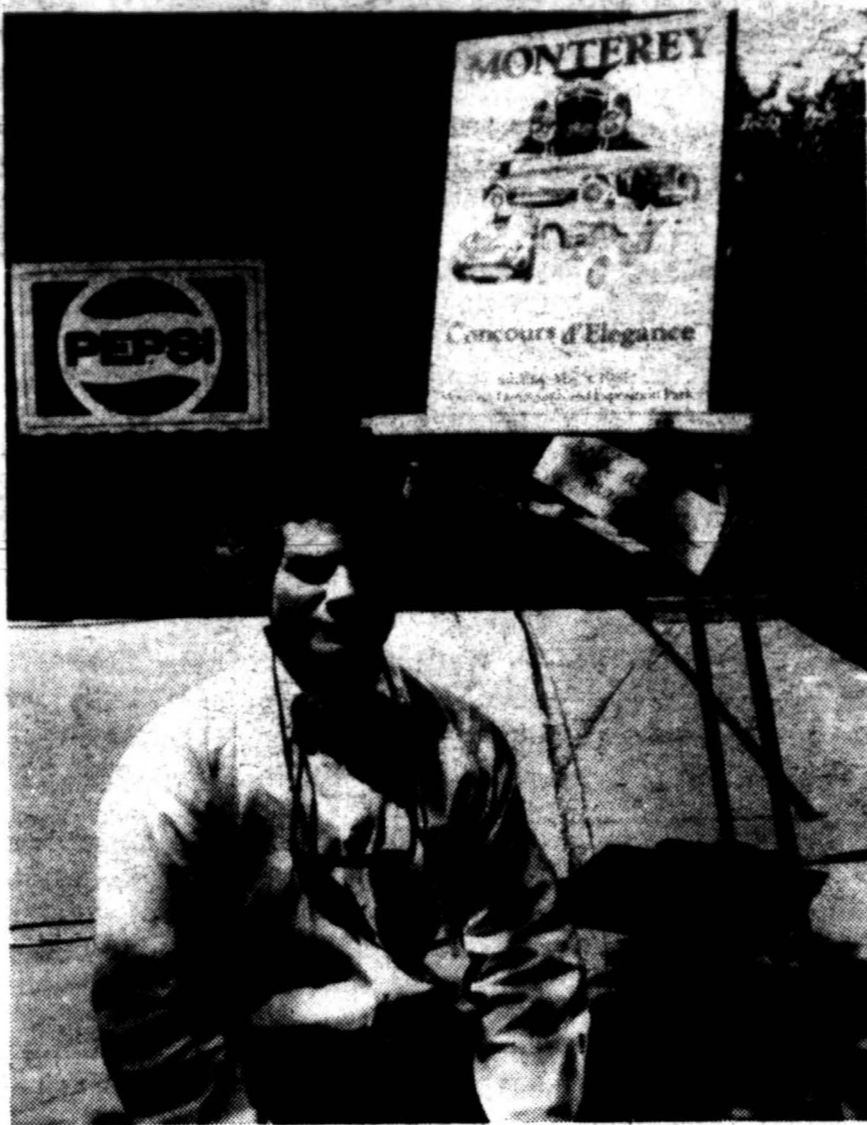

Hearts who deserve kudos for Prom Night are general chair Carol McClure and committee members Patty Qualls, Richard Rudisill, Hon. Michael Fields, Jason Bond, Tia Pulford, Kim Browning, Sharon Reagan, Sally Streuver, Marilyn Anton, Sue Dewar, Steve Tamangi, Patricia Griffin, Cathy Czar, Gael Gallant and Kevin La Graff.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE POPE'S VISIT

Bruna Odello, Kitty Ragsdale, and Helen Spangenberg gave a reception at Mission Ranch, Carmel, to discuss preparations for the visit of Pope John Paul II. He will visit several states before his three California stops. The general theme is "Unity in the World of Service," but he has a special theme for each area he visits. Theme for Carmel (the smallest city on his itinerary) is "Agriculture and Farm Issues."

Col. (ret) David McNeerney, charged with overall arrangements, filled in details by showing diagrams and slides. The Pope arrives by plane from Los Angeles at 9:45 a.m. on Sept. 17 and after a 15-minute welcome by local dignitaries at the airport he will go by helicopter to Laguna Seca where 100,000 people await (each given a 4-by-4 space). After circling the crowd in a Popemobile he will conduct mass on a island in the natural amphitheatre setting.

Everything has to be brought in. There will be 120-foot cross erected, plants for decoration, food, medical stations, mikes, television set-up and 500 port-o-potties (one group said there should be 833 of them).

After noon His Holiness goes (by helicopter) to the Carmel Mission and lands in the ballfield where 650 school children await. He will also greet 125 handicapped people. At the Basilica there will be 2,500 people (with TV screen set up) in the courtyard and 425 seated inside the mission. He will have lunch before departing at 4 p.m. heading north.

There will be no cars at the sites, but rather 1,500 buses will be used. Participating are: a 500-member choir, a 100-piece orchestra, 500 ministers, 1,400 media with exactly 13 minutes allotted for communion.

Fort Ord will help with traffic, Carmel Police Chief John McGilvray and his staff will assist 200 Secret Service men for this head-of-state visit. Everyone will be checked by magnetometers and dogs will be checking for explosives. Schools have been requested to close. Volunteers to help with human services and communication will number 2,000 to 2,500. There will be no charge for tickets, however, but fare will be taken. Tickets will be distributed two to three weeks in advance.

The cost is estimated at $1.5 to $2 million. When people at the reception asked how they could help, Bishop Thaddeus Shubsda answered, "Help is spelled m-o-n-e-y." He has received donations of $100,000, $35,000, and down to $20. He added, "Go do likewise — never again will a Pope come here."

LUNCHEON FOR GEN. DOOLITTLE

Gen. James H. Doolittle of Carmel Valley was guest of honor at a luncheon at Fort Ord Officers Club given by the Monterey Chapter of Guides Dogs For the Blind.

Walter Stewart, also of Carmel Valley, (president of the local chapter) presented the general with a video and a memorial book of the 90th birthday party given for him by this group last December. The book contains clippings, photographs, and congratulatory messages from all over the world.

Among the VIP guests were Gen. and Mrs. E. W. Holstrom, Gen. and Mrs. Robert Coffin, Col. and Mrs. John Doolittle, Mr. and Ms. Donald Rossi (from Guide Dog headquarter, San Rafael), Sue Hutchinson (representing Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood), Don Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meyer, Dr. and Mrs. Harold Compton, and Gen. and Mrs. Wm. H. Harrison who were honored prior to their departure for Seattle.

Videos were given to all guests by Nell Meyer of Pacific Grove and Walter Stewart, who were co-chairs of this special luncheon for around 30 guests.

EMILE NORMAN WILL SPARK SALON VI

"He preaches the gospel of beauty by creating it," it is said of Big Sur artist Emile Norman. His work expresses a timelessness that is indigenous of the nature that surrounds him.

Mr. Norman designed and built his studio and home — a process which has been continuing for 30 years. His workshop contains a special panel saw for cutting large pieces of wood, a planer, a band saw, two table saws, a router, a darkroom, sanders, sand-blasting equipment and a kiln. It is a well-stocked hardware store with every type of screw, nail, bolt, and fitting imaginable. His work (in one medium or another) has been displayed at the De Young Museum, the Chicago Art Institute, the Contemporary Arts Museum in Houston, and the Pasadena Art Institute.

The artist's wit and love of life will add sparkle to the Jesters Salon VI from 3 to 5:30 p.m., May 24th at La Mirada. Salon tickets at $8 each and includes tea sandwiches, tea, rum infusions. Reserve by the 19th by sending check to Polly Kenaston, Route 1 Box 151, Carmel, 93923.

REAL ESTATE TODAY

The 1987 Statement

By Jayde Thompson

If you're going to be selling your home in California in 1987, you'll have to be much more aware of its condition than you were in 1986. There's a new form, a Real Estate Transfer Disclosure Statement, that you have to fill out and present to prospective buyers if the property you're selling has from one to four units on it.

Now, there are some exemptions to this — your real estate agent can tell you more about those — but most people will have to set down in writing some pretty specific information about what shape their property is in. This can include details about important things like the foundation, windows, the roof, and plumbing and electrical systems. It even asks you to disclose anything you might know about conditions in your area that may have affected or possibly still could affect your home, conditions such as landfill compaction, or damage due to fire, earthquake, flood, or landslide.

You'll also have to let the buyer know about such things as kitchen appliances, utilities, alarm systems, and hook-ups for a washer and dryer.

It's only a two-page form and it's fairly straight forward, but it can be very helpful to complete it in consultation with a professional Realtor. If you'd like more information about the form — and find out if it applies to you — call me, Jayde Thompson, your Carmel specialist at Real Estate By The Sea at 624-1444 or stop by my office at San Carlos and Seventh.

FIRE LINES

By Mitch Kastros

Looking for hazards

THE TIME of year is here when people will be doing their annual clean-up around the house in preparation for the summer season. It is also a good time to clean-up any fire hazards that may have accumulated during the past year. There are things to look for both inside and outside of the house.

Inside, start by checking heat-producing agents such as the chimney, furnace and water heater. If your chimney wasn't cleaned at the beginning of winter, now is a good time to have it done before you forget again. Check your water heater and furnace to see if any trash has piled up near them. If so, get rid of it. Also, check your furnace for anything that resembles soot. If it's there, it will be on top of the furnace, or on the floor near the furnace. It is important to immediately contact

PG&E on this because it means that the gas is not burning completely, which may result in carbon monoxide leaks.

Next, check your electrical situation inside. Make sure all outlets, light fixtures and switches are intact, and that no wires from outlets and switches are exposed. Make sure all appliance cords are in good condition, without splices or bare wire showing. This applies especially to electric blankets, kitchen appliances and lamps.

Do not use "octopus" plugs (multi-plugs) to create additional outlets. This is a very dangerous practice because several cords plugged into one outlet can create a lot of heat. It is possible that an overload in the outlet will create enough heat to start a fire before the house breakers or fuses have a chance to shut the power off. If you must consolidate an outlet, use a heavy duty outlet strip with a circuit breaker on it instead of an "octopus." This way if there is an overload, the outlet strip will shut itself off before the heat can build up in the outlet; provided the strip has a circuit breaker. Throw away any octopus plugs you may find.

If you use extension cords, check to see that the thickness of the extension cord is at least as thick as the cord to the appliance it is plugged into; preferably thicker. It is safer for you, and your appliance will run better and last longer. Try to use only heavy duty, doubly insulated extension cords at all times, and stay away from "zipcords" (thin, cheap extension cords) connected to an octopus. These cheap cords are not very durable, and are often used incorrectly, the same way outlets are used incorrectly. If you find them, throw them away and replace them with heavy duty cords.

While you are checking your cord situation inside, make certain that cords are not placed under carpets or stapled to anything. This creates instant wear and tear on the cords which causes their insulation to break down, thus dramatically increasing the chances of a short. If you have ever witnessed a short-circuit in a cord, you know how scary and dangerous it can be. Make sure all cords are in good shape and protected from abuse.

IN THE KITCHEN, see that range and ovens are clean and grease free, and check your washer and dryer for proper and safe wiring. Storage areas should be rid of cluttered trash that is not needed; and whatever items are needed should be neatly stored. Crawl space under the house should never be used for storage. If you have trash stored under your house, get rid of it.

Flammable liquids in a box, cabinet or locker made of metal is an added safety plus.

It is important that gasoline be used only to power gasoline engines, and not as a cleaning agent, charcoal lighter or lantern fuel. When dispensing gasoline into an appliance, do so only when the engine is cold, and use a funnel if your gas can doesn't have a spout. If you must add gasoline while the engine is hot, make sure the engine is off and you have a fire extinguisher handy. Always store gasoline in a U.L. approved safety can, specifically designed for gasoline. Never store it in plastic or glass containers.

In checking the outside, see that all dried vegetation is cleared from the house; 20 feet from the front and back of the house, and 6-15 feet from the sides, depending on the space. Any dead tree limbs hanging over the house should be removed, and all tree limbs within 10 feet of the chimney should be trimmed back. Clean needles and leaves off of the roof, and if you have your chimney cleaned, have the chimney sweep install a spark arrester on top.

The fire department strongly recommends that you do not burn trash. However, you may legally burn on specified burn days until the end of May, if you obtain a permit from the fire department in your jurisdiction. Call the Burn Information Center at 1-800-225-BURN to find out if burning is permitted on the day you wish to burn, and burn only according to the specifications on your permit.

Finally, check where your trash cans are located. We recommend that you use metal cans with tight fitting lids to contain any fire that may start there. There are many arguments that favor the use of plastic cans, but safety is not one of them. If you must use plastic trash cans, make sure they are located away from anything combustible, especially the house. A fire in a plastic can will melt the can and spread.

General Plan revisions now go to planners

By NANCY HILLS

IT WAS a month's worth of Carmel's version of the Phil Donahue or Oprah Winfrey show.

While Carmel planning staff scurried to and fro, mobile microphones in hand, the Carmel Planning Commission, General Plan Review Committee and attendees at five public meetings have listened, defended and debated proposed changes to the 1984 Carmel General Plan.

Now it's time for the planning commission to consider revisions. At 3 p.m., Wednesday, May 20 at Carmel City Hall, the planning commission will begin its own discussion of the revisions. The discussions and workshops will lead to the commission's recommendations to the city council and its decision on whether the changes will require an environmental impact report.

The planning staff plans to break down the transcripts from the five public hearings into issues for the commission.

Those sessions lasted a total of 23 hours and attendance ranged from 50 to 200 people at each meeting. In total, 53 individuals spoke, according to planning department records, and 14 spoke at every meeting.

Though there was plenty of praise for the hard work and dedication of the General Plan Review Committee, only one or two of the speakers voiced favorable opinions about the revisions.

Comments ranged from generic philosophical discussions about the role of city government to detailed objections about using one word versus another.

Challengers of the proposed revisions claimed that the additions, deletions and rewording of the document could induce a dramatic change in the city's appearance and direction.

How extensive and what effect the proposed changes will have has been a major bone of contention.

Councilman and review committee chairman Bob Evans stated he believes the revisions are less extensive "than the public has been led to believe."

"That's not to say that they are not significant," Evans said at the March 14 hearings. Most people who objected to the revisions would not argue that the changes are "significant."

"At this point in the proceedings, none of us know what these changes to the implementing ordinances can or will be," said Howard Nieman Jr., a Carmel resident and vocal critic of the revisions.

"I think that's why I have a very deep concern that too many changes made at the General Plan level opens just too many doors, opens up a process that none of us fully understand at this point in time."

BUSINESS BEAT

By Nancy Hills

A sibling

CONSIDER THIS a belated birth announcement.

Brown & Wilson, Inc., owners of the the world-renowned Carmel Pine Cone (think I'm kidding? We have subscriptions as far away as the Netherlands), has started a sister publication in Pacific Grove.

Of course, this isn't news to most of you out there in newspaper land because the The Pacific Grove Monarch (that's right) first hit Pacific Grove streets Friday, May 1.

Carmelites may get a little jolt when they see the new paper in PG. Is this The Carmel Pine Cone? It certainly bears a striking similarity — family resemblance — to its established Carmel counterpart. The look is the same, but the stories are different — unless, of course, it's a generic story of interest to both towns.

Paul Wolf, 24, a graduate of San Francisco State University where he received a bachelor's degree in journalism (got me beat), will be covering Pacific Grove. Wolf has worked at Phoenix, the university's newspaper; the Millbrae Sun; and The Northern California Jewish Bulletin.

Mac McDonald, The Carmel Pine Cone managing editor, now also functions as the the PG paper's managing editor.

The Monarch is done in the same format as The Carmel Pine Cone and covers politics, arts, Pacific Grove personalities and those other goodies that make this paper so much fun to pick up on Thursdays. There are, of course, columns that focus on PG and even the crossword puzzle that's so popular here.

The arts and leisure section is done by our own arts editor Anne Papineau, who also produces The Monterey Peninsula Review and the arts section in this paper.

The Monarch is delivered on Friday in PG, New Monterey and Pebble Beach and is distributed just like The Pine Cone is in Carmel — at specific locations and businesses. It, too, is free.

Brown & Wilson, Inc. may sound like a distant corporate Continued on page 28

Ruth G. Bixler

Funeral services took place May 5 at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, for Ruth Goddard Bixler, a teacher and astrologer, who died April 28 at her home in Carmel. She was 87.

Born Feb. 3, 1900 in Morocco, Ind., her family moved to California in 1910 and she had been a Carmel resident since 1928.

She attended the University of California at Berkeley, where she was a member of Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority, and graduated with a bachelor's degree in education from San Jose State College — now California State University in San Jose.

She taught school in Needles, Lompoc and Greenfield, and practiced astrology professionally from the early 1930s, teaching and lecturing at Monterey Peninsula College and other locations on the peninsula.

She was a member of the Bahai World Faith and a student of the teachings of Krishnamurti.

Survivors include a daughter, Laurel Fosness of Columbus, Ohio; a son, Bruce of San Francisco; a brother, David S. Goddard of Tampa, Fla., and two granddaughters.

Burial took place at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family prefers memorial contributions to the Carmel Foundation or the Krishnamurti Foundation of America, P.O. Box 216, Ojai, 939023.

K. Reynierson Smith

Private services took place in Lebanon, Ky. for Robert Reynierson Smith, a Carmel Valley resident since 1968, who died April 22 in Carmel Convalescent Hospital. He was 85.

Born May 27, 1901 in Lebanon, Ky., he was an inventor, a pioneer in sound technology and electroforming, and coined the word "Muzak." He worked in the Kentucky coal mines to earn money for his college education.

After graduating from the University of Kentucky in Lexington, he worked for a number of radio and sound companies, including General Electric, Brunswick and Decca Records. While working with Decca, he developed the first high-production, low-cost phonograph records by developing the process using silver reduction in electroforming. He also produced the first electrical transcription for use in radio broadcasting and participated in its first commercial use.

His collection of transcriptions dating back to the 1930s is part of the permanent sound history of the Library of Congress. In the late 1930s, he was asked to start an operation for producing wired systems for background music in restaurants, offices and factories. He coined the word "Muzak" to replace "wired music." From 1941 to 1951, he served as executive vice president of the Muzak Corp., where he established recording studios, processing and pressing plants.

In the early 1950s, he established the K.R. Smith Transcriptions Inc. and later was president of Electroform Corp., and was involved with metal fabrications.

In 1974, he received the Frank E. Lane Industrial Award and a gold medal from the American Electroplaters' Society, and in 1980 received an honorable mention award from the Audio Engineering Society for his contributions in broadcasting and record manufacturing. Last December, he received a lifetime achievement award from the Los Angeles Chapter of the American Electroplaters Society and Finishers. He served the National Academy of Sciences as a member of the Aerospace Techniques Panel.

Survivors include his wife of 53 years, Constance; son, Rey of Los Altos Hills; sister, Christine Whitworth of Stamford, Conn., a grandson and numerous nieces and nephews.

Mission Mortuary was in charge of local arrangements.

Beulah D. Cummings

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Neighbor above self

May 12, 1983 The Carmel Pine Cone/CV Outlook
CARMEL ROTARY CLUB, LA PLAYA HOTEL

On this May Day, Mary's Month, we humbly ask Thee, Oh Almighty God, to bless this food and to bless us all to Thy service by serving our neighbor above self.

Many years ago when I was a teenager I attended St. Joseph's College in Mountain View. Most of our professors were Les Pretres de St. Sulpice de Paris, French Sulpicians. They were excellent teachers, especially of Greek and Latin, but they were tinged with austerity not unlike Jansenistic Calvinism. However, they did have their heroes, both religious and literary, mostly Latins.

They had one English one, a 19th Century poet, Francis Thompson. I could not understand how these ascetic men could pick as a role model this loser, this drop-out, this drug-addicted failure, a hippy before Haight Ashbury.

Years later, I realized that these monastic Frenchmen, like Francis Thompson, had walked down dark roads alone, frightened, terrified, lost until they too called out to God and asked the wisdom and the light to follow His Son. Francis Thompson wrote the poem, "The Hound of Heaven," a masterpiece of lyric poetry which tells us of his flight from God and his return to Him.

When I hear the opening lines I recall them as they were so often recited with a strong French accent by M. L'Abbe Jean Francois Marceteau, S.S. "I fled Him down the nights and down the days, I fled Him down the arches of the years; I fled Him down the labyrinthine ways of my own mind; and in the midst of tears I hid from Him, and under running laughter."

Oh Almighty and Eternal God, in Thy great Fatherly care help us to remember this fact: that your Son never runs out of breath while chasing after us. He does pursue us no matter where, when or how we try to hide. When He catches us, or rather when we allow Him to catch us, He doesn't throw the book at us, nor does He close it. He just turns the page. Amen.

Bible conference set May 15-17

Dr. John Cawood, graduate of Dallas Theological Seminary and professor from Philadelphia College of Bible, will be the guest speaker for a three-day Spring Bible Conference May 15-17, hosted by First Baptist Church of Carmel, 8340 Carmel Valley Road.

His subject for the conference is "God's Answers to Some of Life's Toughest Questions." There will be three days of meetings: Friday at 7 p.m., "Where is Meaning in Life Found?" (Ecc.); Saturday at 10 a.m., "Who is Number One in Your Life? (Job); and at 11 a.m., "How is Your Love Life?" (Song of Solomon); Sunday at 9:30 a.m., "How Do We Then Live?" (Proverbs) and at 11 a.m., "How Do We Worship God?" (Psalms).

For the three sessions on Friday and Saturday, Winky Watson of Child Evangelism Fellowship will have a special program for children. Nursery care is provided.

Planned famine set for May 15

Before you go to bed tonight, some 10,000 human beings around the world will have died of starvation or diseases related to malnutrition. Additionally, millions are homeless and will have no shelter in which to sleep tonight.

While such staggering figures of misery and suffering give many of us a feeling of hopelessness, a group of Cypress Community Church youth have decided to do something about it.

The high school and junior high school youth of Cypress Community Church in Monterey are going to begin a Planned Famine on Friday, May 15. Youth Director Andy Fletcher explained that the group will have a twofold purpose in going without food for 24 hours.

"We plan for the youth participating in the program to stay together during the famine so that while we share the experience of feeling hungry, we can also learn why poverty exists in the world and what we can do about it."

Fletcher explained that many factors contribute to poverty--lifestyles, population, the energy crisis and others. "We'll learn about them through audiovisuals and other program materials and discuss how we can be part of the long-range solution."

The Cypress youth will seek out famine supporters throughout the area to contribute by sponsoring a famine participant.

"Our goal is to raise $2,000," Fletcher said. "The money we raise may help feed or house many families."

entity, issuing proclamations from a cold office complex somewhere deep in the heart of a cruel and distant city, but not so.

It's none other, at least partially, than The Carmel Pine Cone and The Monterey Peninsula Review publisher Bill Brown, whose office is right here on Ocean and San Carlos (wave hello).

Brown & Wilson, Inc. is name of his family's corporation, which also owns four East Bay weeklies; The Moniclarion, The Berkeley Voice, The Piedmonter and The El Cerrito Journal.

The family decided to start the PG enterprise "because every community needs its own newspaper, especially a 'hometown' like Pacific Grove," said Bill Brown.

Only a local weekly can give the attention to detail and in-depth coverage of local issues a smaller town needs, Brown added.

And it's also a business decision.

"We wanted to provide our advertisers with another market to sell their products and services," Brown said, noting that businesswise, the peninsula functions more as a single entity rather than markets defined by geographic boundaries. Many Carmelites shop in PG and visa versa.

Production for The Monarch is done in The Carmel Pine Cone office, a task taken on by none other than the unsung heroes of this newspaper, the production staff.

It's been fun watching The Monarch become a reality and it'll be fun to help it grow.

THE QUICK RUNDOWN

Let's be short and to the point...Greg Bean of the Mobil Station on the corner of Seventh Avenue and San Carlos Street said he's closing down and moving on late in the month. He's going back to Maine. Bean said he's having an auction of all his equipment on May 27, starting at noon...Laura Ashley has opened a store in Carmel Plaza on the second level. The well-known fabric, clothing and home furnishings store (wallpaper, lampshades — that kind of thing), took over the former location of Brown's Barn. Brown's Barn has reopened on Ocean Avenue...Knitting-by-the-Sea has moved to the corner of Junipero and Fifth avenues. Good thing it's still here because Carmel Needleworks on Lincoln Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues has closed its doors. Rumor has it a shop for teenagers will be opening in the space...Plum Pretty, a women's clothing store for larger sizes located on Carmel Rancho Lane, has changed its name to Shana Klayter, after the owners' granddaughter. Not the only change. Owners Leo and Bea Greenburg have been so successful, they opened another store, same kind, recently in Los Altos.

RENTS AGAIN

Investment firm Yates, Downer, Dyer & Kirkpatrick, Inc. has moved from its 25-year location and out of Carmel altogether, where it has conducted business for the past 38 years. The business has been located on Sixth between Lincoln and Dolores since its beginnings in 1949.

It's now happily ensconced and doing well at 201 Van Buren, Monterey, said Robert Kirkpatrick, owner of the firm. Kirkpatrick explained there were a number of reasons for the move, but primarily it was lack of space for expansion, parking and — here we go again — the rents in the recently sold building.

"The change in Carmel is clear," Kirkpatrick said. "It is more and more — and it's not going to turn back — retail-oriented for tourists."

The firm has been doing well, he added, and in fact the last four years has been the best in its history.

He's sorry to leave Carmel, though.

"It took a lot of soul searching," he said.

PARIS IN CARMEL

Tres chic. Straight from Paris to The Crossroads, clothing designers Monique and Alain Nguyen have opened Stecy Jr. Creations Paris, which features their own clothing designs for ages 6 to 16.

The charming Alain Nguyen explained that he and his wife have been designing clothes for many years and owned a shop in Paris before recently moving to the peninsula.

The clothes are still made in France, he added, and include a special line of safari and marine styles for both boys and girls, "beautiful pastel dresses," and many more selections.

Nguyen said they also carry two lines of infant wear that are "very famous in France" — Petit Bateau and Tartine et Chocolate.

The shop also has all kinds of accessories and soon they will be getting shoes — particularly sneakers with different kinds of prints, Nguyen said.

The unusual name, he said, is a combination of Steve and Cyril — their two children's names.

This shop is only the beginning, Nguyen said. They have plans for stores in San Francisco and somewhere in Silicon Valley. But for now, Stecy Jr. in The Crossroads is the only one in the United States.

Valerie Fontes is willing to travel just to help us stay fit and feeling fine — on or off a horse.

LAURA ASHLEY, Inc. has opened a shop in Carmel Plaza which offers the distinctive Ashley design in fabrics and clothing. Manager Megan Parkinson ushered in the new shop. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Poly State University, San Luis Obispo, 10 years experience in health spas and a certificate from the Aerobic Fitness Association, Fontes said she can get just about anyone in shape as their fitness consultant — if they want to be in shape, that is.

Her talents don't stop there. She also started teaching western saddle riding and has 10 years of quarter horse showing experience as a junior and was a member of Cal Poly's rodeo team.

RESTAURANTS

Dock Lor's Canton Restaurant on Fifth between San Carlos and Dolores is in the process of a sale to Sylvia Shan Bullard, who I haven't talked to yet...Jordan's restaurant on Monte Verde next to city hall is also in escrow to Ioannis and Ruby Dimitrakopoulos who plan to turn it into a breakfast and lunch "country kitchen" style eating place called Ruby's Place.

LIVESTONE CLICKERS

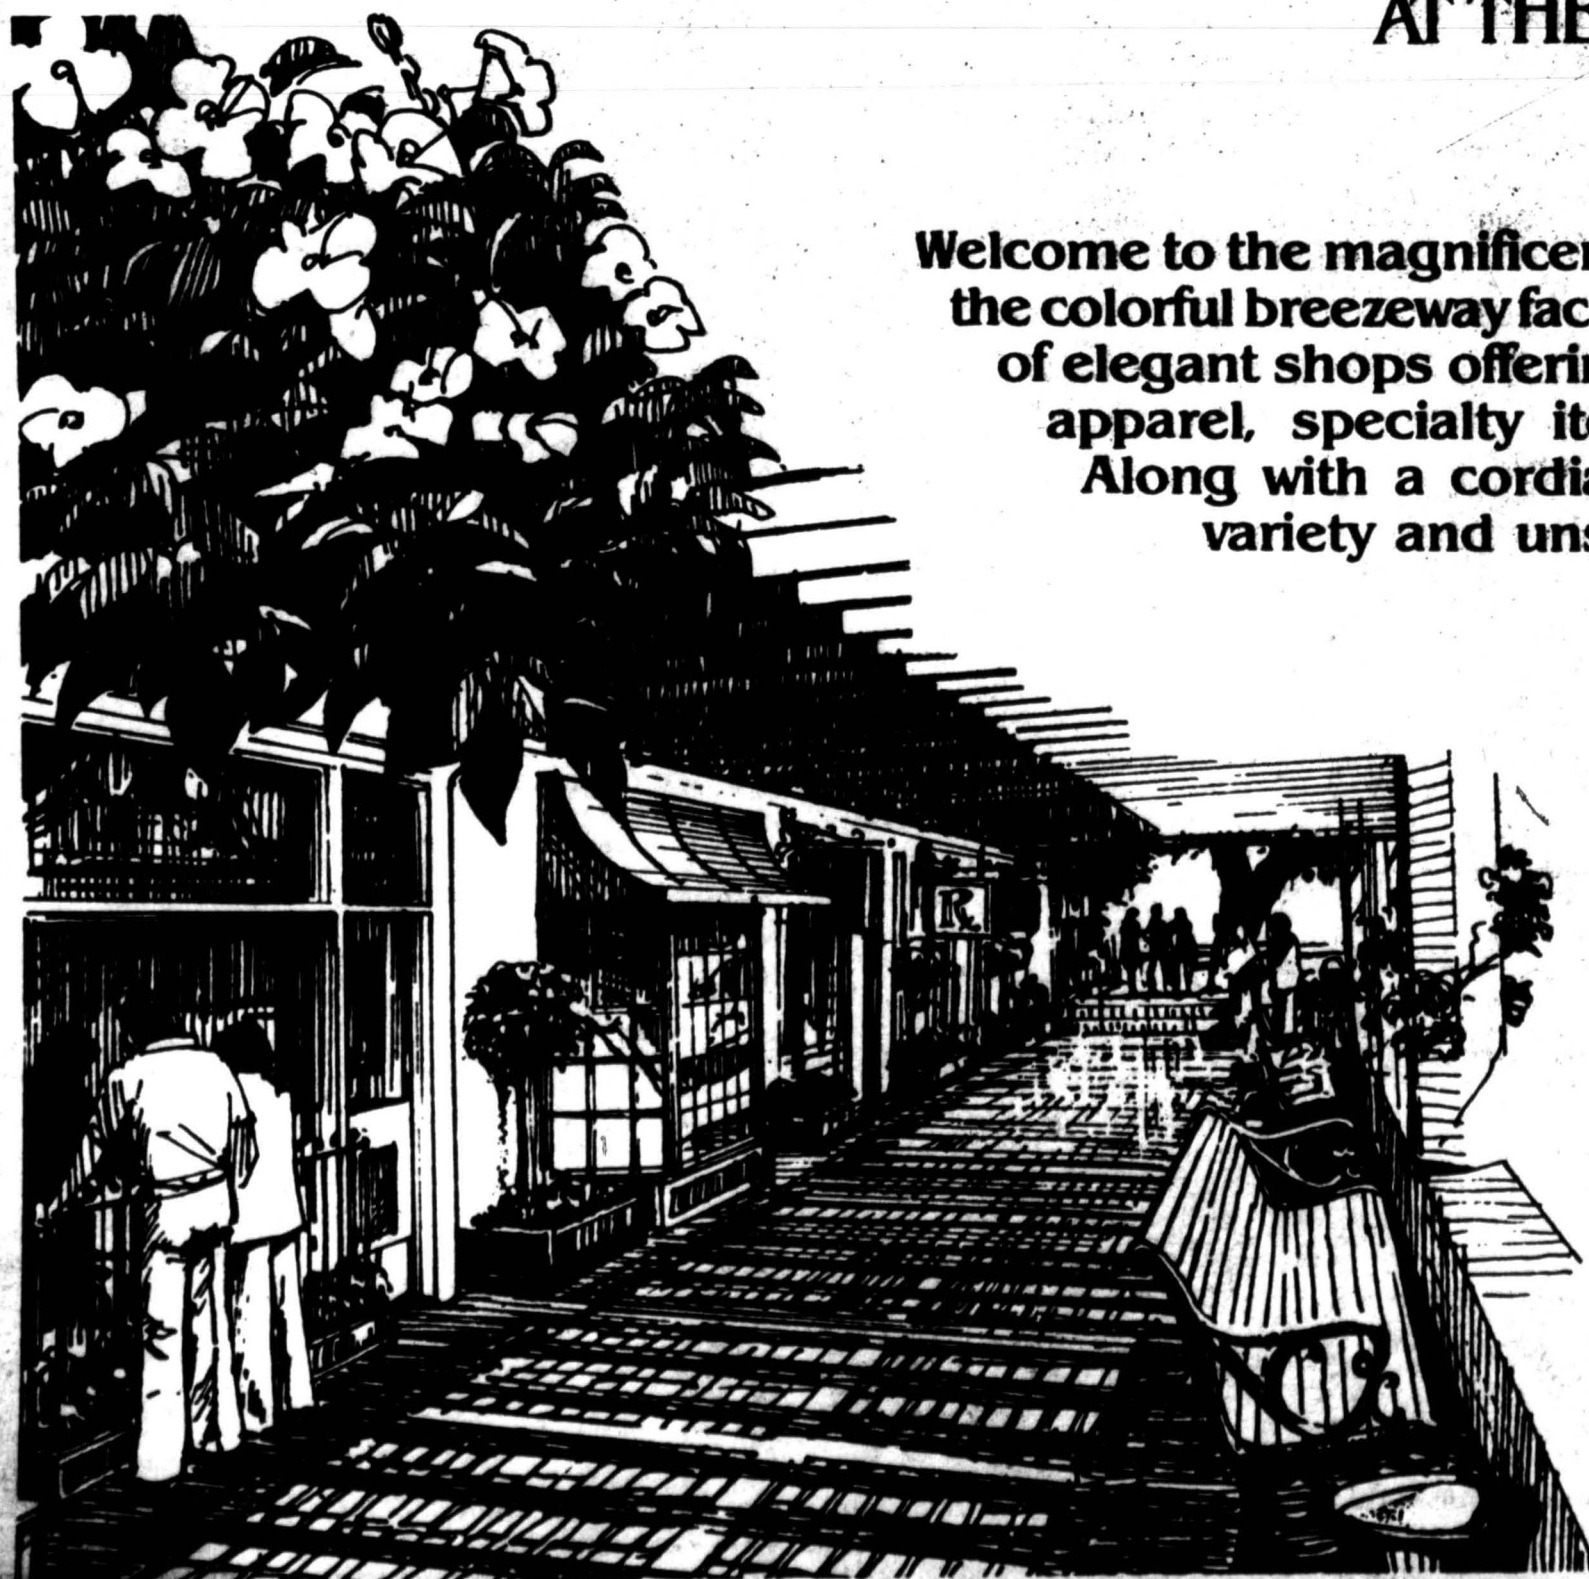

Business people who see photographer John Livingstone clicking in front of their store (or whatever) shouldn't get nervous. Livingstone is making a photographic record of Carmel for the city archives — free of charge — that will also be available to Carmel Heritage.

Business owners, managers and employees who want to be immortalized in the photographs need only say "yes" and step outside.

Businesses can purchase a copy of the photographs from Livingstone if it is desired — sorry, no freebies here.

Livingstone made another record of Carmel in 1982 in his book Carmel by Itself — Portrait of a Unique American Community which is still available in local bookstores.

Indiana U. is next stop for youthful violinist with lofty career goals

By ANNE PAPINEAU

MISHA ROSENKER, like many high school seniors, has a dream. He wants to be a concert violinist.

In preparation for his goal, the soon-to-be graduate of Carmel High School will enter Indiana University in August. There he will counter top music students from 50 states and 11 countries.

The spectre of so much competition doesn't seem to so much plague as pique the musician. Contemplating his future, Rosenker chooses to quote a pronouncement by Inspector Clouseau.

"I accept challenge," he states in a deliberately fake French accent.

Carmel high spring concert set

THE COMBINED forces of the Carmel High School wind ensemble and jazz, marching and concert bands can be heard during the "CHS Spring Concert," to be presented at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 20 in Sunset Theater, Carmel.

Carmel High School Music Director Dick Robins will lead the orchestra. Among the scheduled selections the group will perform are Peter and the Wolf, with narration by KBOQ announcer David Wittrock, clarinet solo by Trey Post and violin solo by Misha Rosenker.

The wind ensemble will be highlighted during Silvercrest, a concert march by James Swearingen.

The evening will also include selections from Fiddler on the Roof with violin solos by Misha Rosenker, space themes from television and film, complete with lighting and sound effects, The Stars and Stripes Forever by John Philip Sousa, San Carlos by Bob Lowden and Centuria overture for band by James Swearingen.

Admission is free to the concert, although donations will be accepted to help support the Carmel High School music program. Sunset Theater is located at San Carlos at Ninth in Carmel.

For more information, call 624-1821.

At 17 Rosenker combines school-age enthusiasm with some seasoned insights into the competitive realm of professional musicianship. Born in Carmel, he has studied exclusively in public schools, graduating from Woods School and, this June, from Carmel High.

But Rosenker has undertaken another education as well. Since the age of 4 he has studied the violin under the direction of his father, Michael Rosenker, former concertmaster of the New York Philharmonic.

"Blame it on my father," Rosenker quipped between morning classes.

"I've always had to sacrifice something," he added. "When I was 7, I was accepted to the Juilliard School in New York on full scholarship, but my father just didn't want me to go when I was so young. I think that was the smartest thing we ever did."

Instead Rosenker lived a more typical childhood, remaining at home with his father and his mother, Kazuko Rosenker. Typical, but only up to a point.

When listing some of the violinists whom he most admires, Rosenker counts among them Ruggiero Ricci — "For his outstanding technique." Unlike most young players, he is able to add personal anecdotes about his heroes, since he has been able to meet these artists through his father.

"I met Ricci at 9 and played for him when I was 10. He said I should return over the summer to study with him, but I declined because I was so young.

"When I played for Leonard Bernstein he said, 'Misha, your whole repertoire is in the Romantic period.' So I've been trying to work on the more modern stuff."

Rosenker has already logged some solo performances locally. He appeared twice in benefits for the Carl Cherry Foundation. The concerts also featured piano recitals by Rep. Leon Panetta.

Locals will be able to hear Rosenker on Wednesday, May 20, when he performs for the last time with the Carmel High School band and orchestra. The concert, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Sunset Theater, will include a performance of Peter and the Wolf to be narrated by KBOQ announcer David Wittrock, and selections from Fiddler on the Roof, which will make use of Rosenker's musical talents. Admission is free, but donations will be accepted in support of the high school music programs.

"I'm my own worst critic, I think," affirmed Rosenker. "I don't sit down after a performance and say, 'That's wonderful.' I'm never satisfied. You should never stop learning 'til you die."

Carmel High School music director Dick Robins described Rosenker as "very dedicated and very creative. I think his potential and his desire to work as hard as he does is going to pay off. If his dream is to be a soloist he certainly will be."

According to Rosenker, "Music is a unique area to go into. My goal is to become a soloist, but I have to be a realist. They only select a few. It's very risky. You have to take a step at a time."

Rosenker has two violins, and he strives to practice daily.

"I have a desultory attitude toward practice sometimes," he said. "But I always come back to it. I can't say I practice X hours a day or something. For half an hour I might really work and solve some problems. If you put in a good half-hour, that is better than five hours wasted."

Rosenker reserves admiration for certain artists in his field.

ARTS & LEISURE

"I admire Jascha Heifetz for his perfection. I've always looked up to his playing as a model. I listen to his records. Albert Spalding, who died in the '50s — I admire for his great musicianship."

Like many high school seniors, Rosenker has been preoccupied in his final semester with trying to enter the right college.

"I can remember sleepless nights, getting the catalogs, looking at the faculty, trying to figure out where I should go. I started out with 10 places," he recalled.

He was accepted into the San Francisco Conservatory of Music with a $3,000 scholarship. But Rosenker opted to go with the largest music school in the country, the one at the University of Indiana.

"I auditioned for the University of Indiana but I won't know for a few weeks if I will receive a scholarship or not," he said.

Rosenker looks back with fondness to his four years at Carmel High School. "I really loved it here. Mr. Ray Stumbo for U.S. history was really fantastic. Such a perfectionist. I've never had a teacher like him."

The violinist looks to the future with a realistic perspective. He will travel to Europe for four weeks this summer with a group of fellow students. Then he will enter a competitive university and pursue a highly competitive career goal.

"Even if you win a major competition you don't necessarily make it. Some people can handle the pressure of competitions and can't handle the stage. It all takes hard work and luck. You have to work at it. You have to add to it. You can't go on talent alone."

EXTENSIVE REHEARSALS precede the Carmel High School Spring Concert, to be presented at 8 p.m. Wednesday, May 20 at Sunset Theater in Carmel. Music Director

Dick Robins oversees rehearsals with Misha Rosenker and other Carmel high music students. Rosenker will solo in the band's performance of Fiddler on the Roof as well as Peter and the Wolf. The latter will be narrated by KBOQ announcer David Wittrock. (Holly McFarland photograph).

entity, issuing proclamations from a cold office complex somewhere deep in the heart of a cruel and distant city, but not so.

It's none other, at least partially, than The Carmel Pine Cone and The Monterey Peninsula Review publisher Bill Brown, whose office is right here on Ocean and San Carlos (wave hello).

Brown & Wilson, Inc. is name of his family's corporation, which also owns four East Bay weeklies; The Moniclanion, The Berkeley Voice, The Piedmonter and The El Cerrito Journal.

The family decided to start the PG enterprise "because every community needs its own newspaper, especially a 'hometown' like Pacific Grove," said Bill Brown.

Only a local weekly can give the attention to detail and in-depth coverage of local issues a smaller town needs, Brown added.

And it's also a business decision.

"We wanted to provide our advertisers with another market to sell their products and services," Brown said, noting that businesswise, the peninsula functions more as a single entity rather than markets defined by geographic boundaries. Many Carmelites shop in PG and visa versa.

Production for The Monarch is done in The Carmel Pine Cone office, a task taken on by none other than the unsung heroes of this newspaper, the production staff.

It's been fun watching The Monarch become a reality and it'll be fun to help it grow.

THE QUICK RUNDOWN

Let's be short and to the point...Greg Bean of the Mobil Station on the corner of Seventh Avenue and San Carlos Street said he's closing down and moving on late in the month. He's going back to Maine. Bean said he's having an auction of all his equipment on May 27, starting at noon...Laura Ashley has opened a store in Carmel Plaza on the second level. The well-known fabric, clothing and home furnishings store (wallpaper, lampshades — that kind of thing), took over the former location of Brown's Barn. Brown's Barn has reopened on Ocean Avenue...Knitting-by-the-Sea has moved to the corner of Junipero and Fifth avenues. Good thing it's still here because Carmel Needleworks on Lincoln Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues has closed its doors. Rumor has it a shop for teenagers will be opening in the space...Plum Pretty, a women's clothing store for larger sizes located on Carmel Rancho Lane, has changed its name to Shana Klayter, after the owners' granddaughter. Not the only change. Owners Leo and Bea Greenburg have been so successful, they opened another store, same kind, recently in Los Altos.

RENTS AGAIN

Investment firm Yates, Downer, Dyer & Kirkpatrick, Inc. has moved from its 25-year location and out of Carmel altogether, where it has conducted business for the past 38 years. The business has been located on Sixth between Lincoln and Dolores since its beginnings in 1949.

It's now happily ensconced and doing well at 201 Van Buren, Monterey, said Robert Kirkpatrick, owner of the firm.

Kirkpatrick explained there were a number of reasons for the move, but primarily it was lack of space for expansion, parking and — here we go again — the rents in the recently sold building.

"The change in Carmel is clear," Kirkpatrick said. "It is more and more — and it's not going to turn back — retail-oriented for tourists."

The firm has been doing well, he added, and in fact the last four years has been the best in its history.

He's sorry to leave Carmel, though.

"It took a lot of soul searching," he said.

PARIS IN CARMEL

Tres chic. Straight from Paris to The Crossroads, clothing designers Monique and Alain Nguyen have opened Stecy Jr. Creations Paris, which features their own clothing designs for ages 6 to 16.

The charming Alain Nguyen explained that he and his wife have been designing clothes for many years and owned a shop in Paris before recently moving to the peninsula.

The clothes are still made in France, he added, and include a special line of safari and marine styles for both boys and girls, "beautiful pastel dresses," and many more selections.

Nguyen said they also carry two lines of infant wear that are "very famous in France" — Petit Bateau and Tartine et Chocolate.

The shop also has all kinds of accessories and soon they will be getting shoes — particularly sneakers with different kinds of prints, Nguyen said.

The unusual name, he said, is a combination of Steve and Cyril — their two children's names.

This shop is only the beginning, Nguyen said. They have plans for stores in San Francisco and somewhere in Silicon Valley. But for now, Stecy Jr. in The Crossroads is the only one in the United States.

Poly State University, San Luis Obispo, 10 years experience in health spas and a certificate from the Aerobic Fitness Association, Fontes said she can get just about anyone in shape as their fitness consultant — if they want to be in shape, that is.

Her talents don't stop there. She also started teaching western saddle riding and has 10 years of quarter horse showing experience as a junior and was a member of Cal Poly's rodeo team.

RESTAURANTS

Dock Lor's Canton Restaurant on Fifth between San Carlos and Dolores is in the process of a sale to Sylvia Shan Bullard, who I haven't talked to yet...Jordan's restaurant on Monte Verde next to city hall is also in escrow to Ioannis and Ruby Dimitrakopoulos who plan to turn it into a breakfast and lunch "country kitchen" style eating place called Ruby's Place.

LIVINSTONE CLICKERS

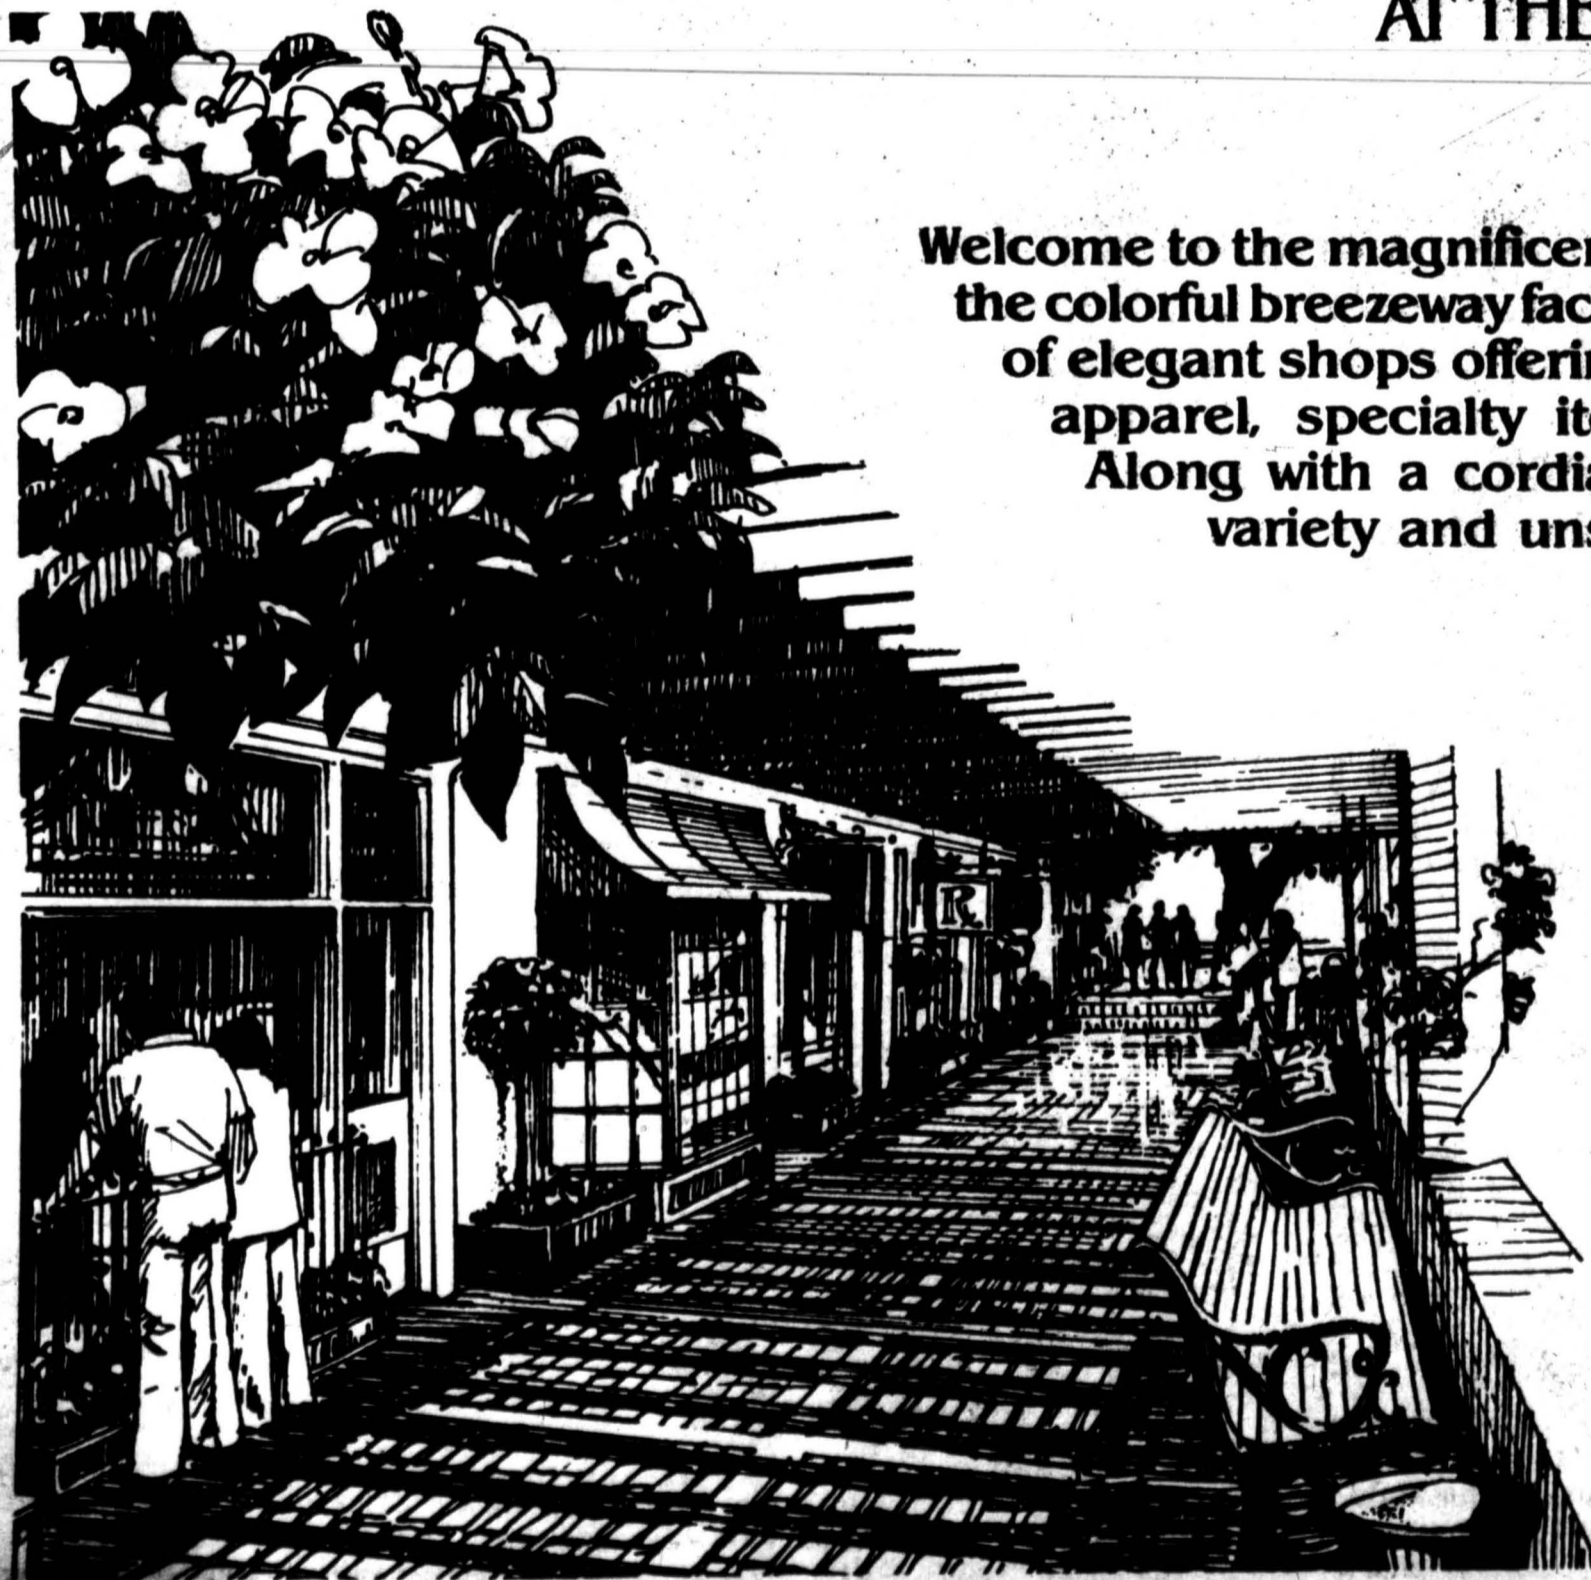

Business people who see photographer John Livingstone clicking in front of their store (or whatever) shouldn't get nervous. Livingstone is making a photographic record of Carmel for the city archives — free of charge — that will also be available to Carmel Heritage.

Business owners, managers and employees who want to be immortalized in the photographs need only say "yes" and step outside.

Businesses can purchase a copy of the photographs from Livingstone if it is desired — sorry, no freebies here.

Livingstone made another record of Carmel in 1982 in his book Carmel by Itself — Portrait of a Unique American Community which is still available in local bookstores.

Indiana U. is next stop for youthful violinist with lofty career goals

By ANNE PAPINEAU

MISHA ROSENKER, like many high school seniors, has a dream. He wants to be a concert violinist.

In preparation for his goal, the soon-to-be-graduate of Carmel High School will enter Indiana University in August. There he will encounter top music students from 50 states and 11 countries.

The spectre of so much competition doesn't seem to so much plague as pique the musician. Contemplating his future, Rosenker chooses to quote a pronouncement by Inspector Clouseau.

"I accept challenge," he states in a deliberately fake French accent.

Carmel high spring concert set

THE COMBINED forces of the Carmel High School wind ensemble and jazz, marching and concert bands can be heard during the "CHS Spring Concert," to be presented at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 20 in Sunset Theater, Carmel.

Carmel High School Music Director Dick Robins will lead the orchestra. Among the scheduled selections the group will perform are Peter and the Wolf, with narration by KBOQ announcer David Wittrock, clarinet solo by Trey Post and violin solo by Misha Rosenker.

The wind ensemble will be highlighted during Silvercrest, a concert march by James Swearingen.

The evening will also include selections from Fiddler on the Roof with violin solos by Misha Rosenker, space themes from television and film, complete with lighting and sound effects, The Stars and Stripes Forever by John Philip Sousa, San Carlos by Bob Lowden and Centuria overture for band by James Swearingen.

Admission is free to the concert, although donations will be accepted to help support the Carmel High School music program. Sunset Theater is located at San Carlos at Ninth in Carmel.

For more information, call 624-1821.

At 17 Rosenker combines school-age enthusiasm with some seasoned insights into the competitive realm of professional musicianship. Born in Carmel, he has studied exclusively in public schools, graduating from Woods School and, this June, from Carmel High.

But Rosenker has undertaken another education as well. Since the age of 4 he has studied the violin under the direction of his father, Michael Rosenker, former concertmaster of the New York Philharmonic.

"Blame it on my father," Rosenker quipped between morning classes.

"I've always had to sacrifice something," he added. "When I was 7, I was accepted to the Juilliard School in New York on full scholarship, but my father just didn't want me to go when I was so young. I think that was the smartest thing we ever did."

Instead Rosenker lived a more typical childhood, remaining at home with his father and his mother, Kazuko Rosenker. Typical, but only up to a point.

When listing some of the violinists whom he most admires, Rosenker counts among them Ruggiero Ricci — "For his outstanding technique." Unlike most young players, he is able to add personal anecdotes about his heroes, since he has been able to meet these artists through his father.

"I met Ricci at 9 and played for him when I was 10. He said I should return over the summer to study with him, but I declined because I was so young."

"When I played for Leonard Bernstein he said, 'Misha, your whole repertoire is in the Romantic period.' So I've been trying to work on the more modern stuff."

Rosenker has already logged some solo performances locally. He appeared twice in benefits for the Carl Cherry Foundation. The concerts also featured piano recitals by Rep. Leon Panetta.

Locals will be able to hear Rosenker on Wednesday, May 20, when he performs for the last time with the Carmel High School band and orchestra. The concert, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Sunset Theater, will include a performance of Peter and the Wolf to be narrated by KBOQ announcer David Wittrock, and selections from Fiddler on the Roof, which will make use of Rosenker's musical talents. Admission is free, but donations will be accepted in support of the high school music programs.

"I'm my own worst critic, I think," affirmed Rosenker. "I don't sit down after a performance and say, 'That's wonderful.' I'm never satisfied. You should never stop learning 'til you die."

Carmel High School music director Dick Robins described Rosenker as "very dedicated and very creative. I think his potential and his desire to work as hard as he does is going to pay off. If his dream is to be a soloist he certainly will be."

According to Rosenker, "Music is a unique area to go into. My goal is to become a soloist, but I have to be a realist. They only select a few. It's very risky. You have to take a step at a time."

Rosenker has two violins, and he strives to practice daily.

"I have a desultory attitude toward practice sometimes," he said. "But I always come back to it. I can't say I practice X hours a day or something. For half an hour I might really work and solve some problems. If you put in a good half-hour, that is better than five hours wasted."

Rosenker reserves admiration for certain artists in his field.

ARTS & LEISURE

"I admire Jascha Heifetz for his perfection. I've always looked up to his playing as a model. I listen to his records. Albert Spalding, who died in the '50s — I admire for his great musicianship."

Like many high school seniors, Rosenker has been preoccupied in his final semester with trying to enter the right college.

"I can remember sleepless nights, getting the catalogs, looking at the faculty, trying to figure out where I should go. I started out with 10 places," he recalled.

He was accepted into the San Francisco Conservatory of Music with a $3,000 scholarship. But Rosenker opted to go with the largest music school in the country, the one at the University of Indiana.

"I auditioned for the University of Indiana but I won't know for a few weeks if I will receive a scholarship or not," he said.

Rosenker looks back with fondness to his four years at Carmel High School. "I really loved it here. Mr. Ray Stumbo for U.S. history was really fantastic. Such a perfectionist. I've never had a teacher like him."

The violinist looks to the future with a realistic perspective. He will travel to Europe for four weeks this summer with a group of fellow students. Then he will enter a competitive university and pursue a highly competitive career goal.

"Even if you win a major competition you don't necessarily make it. Some people can handle the pressure of competitions and can't handle the stage. It all takes hard work and luck. You have to work at it. You have to add to it. You can't go on talent alone."

EXTENSIVE REHEARSALS precede the Carmel High School Spring Concert, to be presented at 8 p.m. Wednesday, May 20 at Sunset Theater in Carmel. Music Director

Dick Robins oversees rehearsals with Misha Rosenker and other Carmel high music students. Rosenker will solo in the band's performance of Fiddler on the Roof as well as Peter and the Wolf. The latter will be narrated by KBOQ announcer David Wittrock. (Holly McFarland photograph).

Come Back to the Five and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean

Ed Graczyk's contemporary drama will conclude its run at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center.

Come Back to the Five and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean is set in a small town dime store where members of a fan club, the Disciples of James Dean, have gathered to mark the 20th anniversary of Dean's death. Their reminiscences mingle with flashbacks to their youth, which, in turn, set off a series of confrontations between them.

Come Back to the Five and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean, is directed by Mickie Mosley Braun. Appearing in the production are Nikki McKee, Sandy Williams, Gina Ferrari, Lorraine M. Olsen, Denise Clifford, Viki Hurst, Maria Ivy Cates, Kris Ingram and Salvatore Enea.

Final performances are scheduled at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, May 14-16.

On Friday and Saturday evening, admission is $9.50 general and $8 for students, seniors and military. On Thursday, admission is $5 and one dime, in honor of the play's title.

For advance tickets, call Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561. For information on reservations or group rates, call Grove-Mont at 649-6852.

The Business of Murder

The Business of Murder, a two-act play by Richard Harris, plays Friday and Saturday at The York School Theater.

York School senior Greg Rucka directs the mystery, set in a north London flat. Due to the nature of the plot, the director strongly advises that no one under age 10 be admitted to the theater. No late sitting will be permitted.

The cast features Matt Harray, Amy Spence and Danny Harray. Admission is free, and curtain will be at 8 p.m. May 15 and 16. For reservations, call 372-7338.

Sweeney Todd — The Barber

The melodramatic story of a man's greed and madness, Sweeney Todd — The Barber, plays at California's First Theatre. The 19th century work inspired the hit Broadway musical, Sweeney Todd. The troupers will stage an olio of songs and skits following the show.

Razzle on the Razzle

Turn-of-the-century Vienna is the setting for Tom Stoppard's satiric farce, Razzle on the Razzle. The comedic piece, which leans heavily on language games and mistaken identities, will be staged by the Carmel High School Players.

Diana Hardy directs Razzle on the Razzle. The farce focuses on two shop boys who seek a chance to escape to the city for a day's fun. Their employer has gone into the city to enjoy an engagement supper with his fiancée, Madame Knorr; and their employer's niece has seized the opportunity to elope with her fiancée. Unfortunately each of the principals ends up at the same restaurant.

Curtain is at 7:30 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, May 21-23, in Room 2 at Carmel High School. Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for students.

Carmel novelist Robert Campbell receives top mystery award in N.Y.

A COMMITTEE of his peers awarded Carmel author Robert W. Campbell
the Mystery Writers of America Edgar Allan Poe Award for best paperback mystery of 1986.

According to his friend and fellow author
Robert Irvine, Campbell picked up the honor last Friday in New York City. His planned acceptance speech was "I don't know if I deserve this award, but I have a little arthritis and I don't deserve that either."

Friends director takes helm at critical time

By ANNE PAPINEAU

THE NEW DIRECTOR of the Friends of Photography will usher the organization into its third decade and new $3 million Ansel Adams Center. But first she must find temporary San Francisco quarters for the Friends.

Lynn J. Upchurch succeeds James Alinder as executive director of the non-profit organization devoted to the development of fine art photography. Unlike Alinder, her career is grounded in administrative, not artistic achievements.

"I am a businesswoman, but a specialist in art museums," Upchurch explained. "I have a sensitivity to art and artists, yet a practical knowledge and experience. My commitment is to organization."

Alinder announced last year that he would step down from his post to pursue photography, publishing and other creative projects. During his 10-year tenure as executive director of The Friends, Alinder oversaw an increase from 1,200 to 14,000 members and the expansion of the Friends' critically acclaimed publishing program. On July 1, Alinder will become a vice president of the executive committee of the board of trustees.

"I enjoy implementing change and making it happen. I think the change process is fascinating; I'm not a maintenance person."

A nationwide search preceded the selection of Upchurch last month.

"I wonder if the people of Carmel know how important a national organization is housed here," noted Upchurch, speaking within earshot of the Friends of Photography's 1,400-square-foot office/gallery housed in Sunset Center.

Like Alinder, Upchurch has supervised periods of growth in arts organizations. For a decade she was executive director of the San Francisco-based Art Museum Association of America (AMAA), the largest art museum service organization in North America. And from 1972 to 1977, she served as chief administrator of the Museum of Contemporary Art in Chicago.

Most recently, she has been a consultant to Henry Hopkins, director of the Frederick R. Weisman Collection in Los Angeles.

"Part of my transition here involves becoming aware of this organization and its financial structure," she said. "The Friends has a budget of over $1 million a year with its current operation and scope here in Carmel. It could easily hit $2 million with the opening of the (Ansel Adams) museum."

Upchurch became acquainted with the Friends of Photography and other Monterey Peninsula arts organizations through her work with the Art Museum Association, formerly called the Western Association of Art Museums.

"The association provided service to art museums, and the Friends was served by it," she said. "AMAA provided arts insurance for about 250 museums. It would travel exhibits around the United States. The Friends would ship an exhibit to about eight to 10 other museums, under the auspices of AMAA."

Under her aegis, AAMA launched "ARTIS," a fully integrated computerized information system for museums.

"I asked a committee of executives in museums to determine their biggest management problems. We developed a system of financial, facility, people and money management. The association also offered technical assistance to museums, such as discounts on air freight. It offered all sorts of tangible assistance."

In 1977 Upchurch visited the Friends of Photography, Marjorie Evans Gallery and the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, to acquaint herself with these peninsula facilities.

"I continued to stay aware of the Friends' work through their very impressive publications. The quality compelled a person to read them. There are many mediocre arts organizations. When you see one that is a step ahead of the crowd, it's easy to develop an appreciation," she recalled.

UPCHURCH JOINS the Friends of Photography during a critical time of transition. The organization has been housed in Carmel's Sunset Center since its founding in 1967. Growth forced a need for larger headquarters and exhibition space.

Ansel Adams, a founding member, president and chairman of the board of trustees of The Friends, began working toward establishing its permanent home before his death in 1984. The search was continued by Alinder, and was extended beyond the Monterey Peninsula when no suitable site could be found here. Ultimately the Friends located a 24,000 square-foot site at Pier 1 at Fort Mason in San Francisco.

When the Ansel Adams Center opens at a target date of early 1989, Lynn Upchurch will be at the helm.

"I enjoy implementing change and making it happen. I think the change process is fascinating; I'm not a maintenance person," she explained.

A resident of Oakland, Upchurch will not begin full-time work with the Friends until June 1. But she has already prioritized her tasks.

"We have commitments through January at Sunset Center. I have to find office space in San Francisco that we can occupy until Fort Mason is ready. We will need the office space for at least two years — Fort Mason is still a big warehouse," she explained.

"I must move the staff to San Francisco as quickly as people can make changes in their lives; work with the board and architectural staff to assure that the museum will be what we're all dreaming about; raise money to help operate existing programs and to stabilize those programs. And as a publishing empire, we've got to stay in place," she explained.

Upchurch characterizes her predecessor as "a miracle worker."

"Jim Alinder took a tiny staff and budget and really built something. He is visionary," she stated.

LYNN J. Upchurch succeeds James Alinder as executive director of the Friends of Photography. She was previously chief administrator of the Museum of Contemporary Art in Chicago and for a decade served as executive director of the Art Museum Association of America.

"The wonderful thing I've inherited in this job is that Jim left me $2.6 million for the Ansel Adams Center. I'm not starting with an empty jar."

Fund raising and budgeting are constants within any arts administrator's worklife.

Speaking of the Ansel Adams Center at Fort Mason, Upchurch noted that "About 60 percent of our revenues will be earned from gift shop sales and admission fees. The other 40 percent will probably have to come from gifts and grants — our own endowment fund."

"Fund raising is a lifetime of work. You never stop that. A wonderful aspect of the Production-filled summer planned at Forest Theater

CARMEL'S historic Forest Theater will be the setting for a season of drama and musicals when three theaters present "Four in the Forest."

The Forest Theater Guild, in cooperation with the Monterey Peninsula College Theatre Department and GroveMont Theater, will offer season tickets for a succession of shows running from June 11 through Oct. 4.

Season tickets, priced at $24, offer theatergoers "Four in the Forest," — four shows for the price of three.

The season opens July 11 with a performance of Lerner and Loewe's Brigadoon. It will continue Thursdays through Sundays until July 11. Opening July 30 is Shakespeare's Taming of the Shrew, which plays through Aug. 23.

GARRETT GOULD and LaVonne Rae Andrews will appear in the musical, Brigadoon, opening June 11 at the outdoor Forest Theater in Carmel.

Dunlop and Dale's Scapino will be staged Thursdays through Sundays from Aug. 27 through Oct. 11 in repertory with Cole Porter's Kiss Me Kate, which plays Sept. 3 through Oct. 4.

Brigadoon tells the story of two young Americans who stumble into a misty Scottish Valley and discover a village that has been asleep for over a century. None of the villagers may leave or the spell will be broken, but the plot gets complicated when one of the Americans falls in love with a village girl. Memorable songs include There But for You Go I, Almost Like Being in Love, Heather on the Hill and Bonny Jean.

Hamish Tyler directs the production, which features Todd Lueders as Tommy, Keith Decker as Jeff, Linda Purdy as Fiona, Ian Neuman as Charlie, LaVonne Rae Andrews as Meg, Jim Kinney as Mr. Lundie and Laurel Harris as Jean. Kerry Thompson is musical director and Gloria Elber is choreographer.

Award-winning director James Dunn will take the helm for an innovative interpretation of Taming of the Shrew. Co-produced by the Forest Theater Guild and the MPC Theatre Department, Shrew follows such other Dunn-directed plays as Comedy of Errors, Midsummer Night's Dream and California Dreamin'.

Dunn's Taming of the Shrew previously won acclaim at the Edinburgh Festival and had a professional two-year run in San Francisco. In Carmel, Dunn will give this "battle of the sexes" a "Spaghetti Western" motif.

Dunn makes no changes in the text, but his production will feature a Petruchio who appears smoking a small cigar, wearing a serape, with a dark hat set low over his eyes.

GroveMont Theater will celebrate its five-year anniversary by staging a revival of Scapino. Inspired by Moliere's That Scoundrel Scapin, the play is a fast-paced farce authored by Frank Dunlop and Jim Dale. It begins with a song made up from the menu of an Italian restaurant and stars John Rousseau, a member of the Magic Carpet Band. Directing the comedy will be Sid Cato. The story follows a crafty and persuasive servant who goes to amazing lengths to dupe two penny-pinching misers. Also appearing in Scapino are Stephen Moorner, Jeff Hudelson, Tommie Bates, Bill Reinthaler, Betsy Griffin, Elizabeth Scultz, Michael Ljokovic and Sandy Williams.

Cole Porter's Kiss Me Kate takes its cue from Shakespeare's Taming of the Shrew. It was adapted by comedy writers Bella and Samuel Spewack. One of its songs, So in Love, became a popular hit.

'Americana' theme for crafts guild exhibit

"Americana" is the theme of the 1987 Carmel Crafts Guild exhibition to be held in the Marjorie Evans Gallery during the month of May.

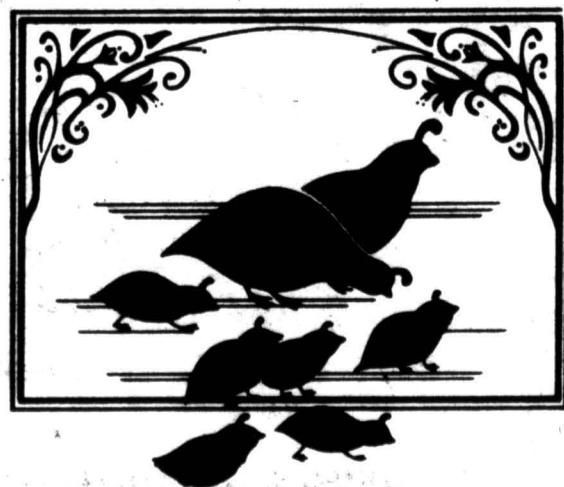

It will be demonstrated through the "fiber bridge" between the past and the present. The interweaving of threads, the "over and under" construction links us to our parents, our ancestors, and their ancestors all the way back in time to primitive man. It has created garments and shelters and adornments, protecting man's very vulnerable self against cold, unfriendly elements and against evil. It has given him warmth, beauty and a safe place to live and has made him distinct. Weavings are for everyone.

The exhibit will include wallhangings, wearables, yardage, rugs, baskets and miscellaneous boutique hand-woven items.

The gallery is open each weekday from 9 to 5 and on most nights of performances. There is no admission charge. The exhibit will open Monday, May 4 and run through May 29.

Jung's 'Answer to Job' studied ANNOUNCED AS a "stimulating dialogue," three panelists will discuss how religion and psychology come together in the landmark statement made by C.G. Jung in his book, Answer to Job.

The program will begin at 7 p.m. Friday, May 15, at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel. Sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung, the event will feature talks by Jeffrey P.

Cave, associate rector of All Saints'; Mary Thomas, formerly director of religious education, St. Mary's-by-the-Sea, Pacific Grove, and Joseph Pagano of Monterey.

Passages from the book will be available to participants. Discussions will focus on individual responses as translated into everyday life terms. The public is invited to this and all other presentations of the Friends of C.G. Jung, which is an informal organization of people who share an enthusiasm for the great Swiss psychologist's ideas.

Upchurch to direct Friends' move to S.F.

job is the vision of its founder, Ansel Adams. That makes this an incredibly attractive endeavor. He's pretty close to being a household word in America. It is my job to take the existing structure in Carmel and add to it the things needed to accomplish new goals. What the dreams for the Ansel Adams Center will be — I must make sure are all affordable."

The Friends of Photography's Capital Campaign in support of the Ansel Adams Center has been augmented by challenge grants and donations from around the world. Last week, the campaign was further supported by a bicoastal fund-raising effort. On May 6 Sotheby Parke Bernet of New York City auctioned vintage photographs by a number of artists in support of the center. Later that day in San Francisco, pianist Vladimir Ashkenazy gave a solo recital to benefit the Ansel Adams Center and the San Francisco Opera.

Upchurch affirmed that while she is not involved in the creative process, she is an avowed fan of photography.

"I love photography and I collect it to some extent. I've been involved in art museums for 16-17 years and the photographic exhibits always draw me. There's a freshness to photography right now, a lot of experimentation. There are more photographs hanging in my house than paintings."

She is also aware of the important role the Monterey Peninsula has played in the cultivation of fine art photography.

"Carmel is a very special, a place where photographers have gone to be inspired. The fact there is this cluster of superior photographers is a real compliment to Carmel," she maintained.

The decision for the Friends of Photography to leave Carmel was made before Upchurch joined the organization. But she is acquainted with the loss it represents to the community.

"These quarters are so cramped. Still, it was a very difficult choice. The emotion and sentiment of leaving Carmel is very painful to many people. Those people have a strong attachment to Carmel. On the other hand, I think they're all equally excited about the new center that started with seeds germinated in Carmel."

The Ansel Adams Center will boast four separate exhibition galleries, an education center with classrooms and a demonstration darkroom, an auditorium, a library and a bookstore.

Upchurch professed a commitment to shepherding the Friends through this challenging time.

"I read in a book that most adults have three career changes in their lives. To do what I want to do here takes seven to 10 years at the least. In the art world you don't just take a job. This is my life's work. I imagine I'll be doing this until I'm a very old lady."

Asia Museum lecture to focus on history of Japanese Imari

Art Asia Museum will present a lecture on the history of Japanese Imari from its inception in 1610 to the 20th century by C. Philip Cardeiro, director. The areas of special focus are Ko-Imari (17 to 18th centuries) and Kenjo (gift) Imari.

The lecture is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 21 in the community room of the Crossroads, Rio Road off Highway 1, Carmel. The lecture is free and the public is welcome.

Political strife and destruction of major kiln sites in China led to a decline of its porcelain industry in the early 17th century. This upheaval gave impetus to the budding Japanese porcelain centers and within the 17th century saw the flourishing and rapid development of very talented Japanese ceramicists and decorators.

The slide lecture will present illustrations of these achievements. There will be a "hands on" seminar for members only on Saturday,

May 23, for which there is a charge and pre-registration is required. For further information contact Lucy Beasley, 625-3429.

A reception for the artists will take place 5 to 9 p.m. Friday at both Handworks locations, on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth, 624-6000 and Handworks on Dolores Street at Seventh, 624-8198. Call either gallery for additional information.

KIP CRANNA, musical administrator of the San Francisco Opera, will present a lecture recital titled, "Mozart's 'The Magic Flute,' from the 'Silly' to the 'Sublime.'" The lecture is part of the Carmel Bach Festival Spring Salon, and begins at 3 p.m. Sunday, May 17 at the Highlands Inn.

ENJOY LIFE on the beautiful SOUTH SUR COAST

Drive the Scenic Highway 39 miles south of Carmel to this 7/10 acre site on the ocean side of the Highway, on which are situated two residences, looking across a lovely high meadow to the Pacific Ocean beyond. Immediately to the north is Burns Creek, flowing into the ocean. Further up its canyon, was the Burns Family homestead.

Pictured above is the original house of bedroom, living/kitchen area and bath, completely handcrafted by its former owner. A protected patio adds to the living area of just under 600 sq. ft.

The rambling, newly completed house of approximately 900 sq. ft. with deck, shares the large, paved parking courtyard and is shaded by immense pines.

Inside the newer home, one finds a metal-hooded fireplace, modern appliances, wall-to-wall carpeting and two bedrooms and baths. Price is $350,000. Contact our Coast Properties Division for added details and an appointment to see this unusual property.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT AND HEARING
Master File No.
C-84-20489 RPA

In Re Consolidated Preliminary Proceedings in National Bank of Carmel
Litigation and Related Cases
IMPORTANT LEGAL NOTICE TO ALL CARMEL BANCORPORATION SHAREHOLDERS WHO OWNED BANCORPORATION STOCK ON MAY 4, 1984.

1. The Class. A Class Action Settlement Agreement has been reached in a Class Action pending in United States District Court, Northern District of California, Master File No. C-84-20489 RPA. The Class consists of all persons, other than Settling Defendants, who owned shares of Carmel Bancorporation ("Bancorporation") common stock on May 4, 1984, including their legal representatives, administrators, executors, heirs, successors and assigns. The Class is divided into two distinct subclasses as follows: "Subclass A" includes all persons who owned common stock of Bancorporation on May 4, 1984, purchased pursuant to that public offering conducted pursuant to that certain Registration Statement, as amended, filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on behalf of Bancorporation, as Registrant, in November, 1983, effective January 17, 1984. "Subclass B" includes all persons who owned Bancorporation common stock on May 4, 1984, acquired in any other manner. A person may be a member of both "Subclass A" and "Subclass B" if he/she purchased shares both pursuant to the public offering and otherwise.

IF YOU ARE A MEMBER OF THE CLASS (WHICH INCLUDES EITHER SUBCLASS), THE PROPOSED SETTLEMENT WILL AFFECT YOUR RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS.

BANKS, BROKERAGE FIRMS, OR ANY OTHER PERSONS OR ENTITIES HOLDING RECORD TITLE FOR ANY PERSON(S) WHO WERE OR MIGHT HAVE BEEN A CLASS MEMBER(S), ARE REQUIRED TO FORWARD THIS NOTICE, TOGETHER WITH THE ACCOMPANYING PROOF OF CLAIM FORM, TO THE PROSPECTIVE CLASS MEMBER(S).

2. Class Claims. Plaintiffs claim that Bancorporation, the directors and officers of Bancorporation and the National Bank of Carmel ("Bank"); Walker, McClure, Bohnen & Brehmer, lawyers representing Bancorporation; Deloitte, Haskins & Sells, accountants performing services for Bancorporation and the Bank and others ("the Settling Defendants") violated the Securities Act of 1933, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder and other federal and state law including breach of fiduciary, professional, legal, accounting and auditing duties and standards, fraud, negligence, mismanagement, self dealing, infliction of emotional distress and others in connection with the issuance and sale of Bancorporation stock and the conduct of the affairs of Bancorporation to the detriment and damage of Bancorporation shareholders. The claims being settled include a complaint-in-interpleader by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation ("FDIC"), as receiver for the Bank, alleging, among other things, negligence and violations of the National Bank Act against the directors and officers and legal malpractice against Walker, McClure, Bohnen & Brehmer. The FDIC alleges damages exceeding $15,000,000.00 against these parties.

Virginia Surety Company, Inc. ("Virginia Surety"), the insurance company insuring the defendant officers and directors, brought an interpleader action (C-85-20539 RPA) and deposited $3,000,000.00 with the Court. The interpleader action is designed to determine who is entitled to the amount deposited with the Court. The FDIC claims it has priority to all proceeds of the Virginia Surety insurance policy by virtue of its status as receiver for the Bank. The amounts deposited with the Court are insufficient to satisfy the FDIC's claimed damages.

Under the terms of the FDIC settlement with the directors and officers, the FDIC will receive the entire amount deposited with the Court plus an additional $1,500,000.00 payment from Virginia Surety. The FDIC will receive additional amounts from the insurers of Walker, McClure, Bohnen & Brehmer. As described in Section 4 below, the Settling Defendants, or their other insurers, will contribute the funds necessary to settle this Class Action.

Settling Defendants specifically disclaim and deny any liability or wrongdoing with respect to any of these allegations. The proposed Settlement is not to be construed as, or deemed to be an admission of, any liability or wrongdoing by any of the Settling Defendants.

3. Other Litigation.

In addition to the shareholder and FDIC actions, there are other peripheral actions arising from the closure of the Bank. The Bancorporation may assign to the FDIC certain claims it has in other litigation. This assignment is contingent upon several factors, including FDIC approval. Litigation in all other peripheral actions will continue. Further, all current Bancorporation shareholders will continue to be shareholders in Bancorporation and may participate in any recovery to the extent allowed by law.

4. Benefits To The Class Under The Settlement Agreement. The Settlement Agreement provides that the sum of $1,200,000.00 (the "Settlement Fund") will be paid by the Settling Defendants or their insurers into an escrow account for the benefit of the Class. The Settlement Fund shall be used to pay all costs and expenses incurred in connection with this Notice to the Class and the administration of the Settlement Fund. In addition, Class Counsel will be paid their fees and expenses in the approximate amount of $230,000.00, plus certain additional amounts as may be incurred and approved by the Court. The balance of the fund will be distributed to Class members submitting a valid Proof of Claim pursuant to the formulas set forth in the Settlement Agreement. Certain identified Class members who have previously filed claims against Settling Defendants under Sections 11, 12 (1), 12 (2) and 15 of the Securities Act of 1933 and under the California Corporation Code, Sections 25401 et seq., in accordance with the applicable statutes of limitations, will receive the sum of $180,000.00 in recognition of those claims to be distributed in direct proportion to the number of shares they held. Approximately 89.5% of the amount remaining in the Settlement Fund will be distributed to Class members who owned shares purchased pursuant to the Registration Statement effective January 17, 1984 (Subclass A). Finally, the remaining 10.5% of the Settlement Fund will be distributed to Class members who owned shares purchased prior to January 17, 1984 (Subclass B).

5. To Obtain More Information. Class members may inspect the proposed Settlement Agreement, complaints, and other pleadings filed in this litigation during normal business hours at the offices of Jackson, Tufts, Cole & Black at the following address: 60 South Market Street, 10th Floor, San Jose, California 95113 or at the office of the Clerk of the United States District Court for the Northern District of California, 280 South First Street, San Jose, California 95113. Because of the time limits noted herein, you should act right away.

6. Claims. Under the terms of the proposed Settlement, Class members who may be entitled to damages must file a claim and furnish certain supporting documentation. The instructions and forms for filing a claim are included in the Notice mailed to each known Shareholder of Bancorporation as of May 4, 1984, and may be obtained from Class Counsel. All claims must be submitted to the Clerk of the Court at the address stated on the claim form by June 22, 1987.

7. Court Hearing. The proposed Settlement is subject to the approval of the Court. The Court will conduct a hearing at the United States District Court for the Northern District of California, 280 South First Street, San Jose, California 95113, before the Honorable Robert P. Aguilar on June 5, 1987, at 11:00 a.m., to decide whether the proposed Settlement and the amount paid to Class Counsel as attorneys' fees should be approved as fair, just and reasonable. Any Class member may appear at the hearing in person or through an attorney retained at the member's expense to support or object or ask questions about the proposed Settlement. However, before any Class member appears, written advance notice of the intention to appear must be provided to Class Counsel identified below and to the Clerk of the Court no later than May 21, 1987. Class members may also file written objections no later than May 21, 1987, and must serve those objections on Class Counsel:

J. David Black, Esq.
Jackson, Tufts, Cole & Black
60 South Market St., 10th Fl.
San Jose, CA. 95113

Robert T. Lynch, Esq.
Lynch, Loofbourrow, Helmenstein
Gilardi & Grummer
San Francisco, CA 94133

Class Counsel will provide copies of all such materials to counsel for the Settling Defendants.

8. Effect Of Settlement. UNDER THE SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT, ALL CLASS MEMBERS, EXCEPT THOSE WHO EFFECTIVELY CHOOSE TO BE EXCLUDED FROM THE CLASS PURSUANT TO THE PROCEDURES SPECIFIED BELOW, WILL BE FOREVER BARRED FROM MAINTAINING ANY INDIVIDUAL, CLASS, COMMON OR DERIVATIVE CLAIMS OR FROM RAISING ANY DEFENSES WHICH WERE STATED, OR WHICH COULD HAVE BEEN STATED, ARISING OUT OF THE MATTERS BEING SETTLED BY THE AGREEMENT.

9. Exclusion From Class. Members of the Class may request, in writing, to be excluded from the proposed Settlement. If you elect to be excluded from the Class, you will not share in the Class recovery. Requests for exclusion should be sent to the Clerk of the Court. Requests must be received by the Court on or before May 21, 1987, and must state the name and address of the person making the request, that he/she requests exclusion from the Class Action and, as to each purchase of Bancorporation stock made during the period January 1, 1980 through and including May 4, 1984, the date of such purchase, the number of shares of stock purchased and the purchase price.

UNLESS YOU REQUEST EXCLUSION FROM THE CLASS, YOU WILL BE BOUND BY THE TERMS OF THIS PROPOSED SETTLEMENT REGARDLESS OF WHETHER OR NOT YOU FILE A CLAIM HEREIN.

NOTHING IN THE NOTICE IS TO BE CONSTRUED AS INDICATING ANY VIEWS OR OPINIONS BY THE COURT ABOUT ANY OF THE CLAIMS, DENIALS OR DEFENSES OF THE PARTIES OR THE PROPOSED SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT.

CARMEL LEGENDS

No. 16

This week we'd like to tell you a bit about a current Carmel Legend...the man who writes this page each week. We can do this as he is away on vacation and he can not enforce his anonymity. AL SMITH is a retired advertising executive who fled San Francisco for the comforts of Carmel Point some years back. He now exercises his considerable talents by writing these weekly vignettes about Carmel's character's and events. He got started in his studies of Carmel when he accepted our challenge ten years ago or so to write a "Real Estate Guide to Carmel" for our clients. (Stop by and pick one up!) Al enjoys Carmel, we enjoy his writings, we hope you do too! We know people are reading this column as one of our local friends stopped us on the sidewalk to tell us she enjoyed our ads and congratulated us on..."compounding more mis-information about Carmel"...than any other source in town! Pretty high praise, we thought!
